

Honors Day Program Will Feature Talk On "The Moods of Modern Poetry"

Dr. Bruce Dearing, assistant professor of English literature at Swarthmore College, will be speaker at this year's Honors Day program on Thursday, October 22, at 7:30 p.m. in Taylor Chapel. His topic will be "The Moods of Modern Poetry."

Dr. Dearing was graduated from Allegheny College where he received the degree of bachelor of arts. From the University of Iowa he received the degrees of master of arts and doctor of philosophy.

On this past Sunday Dr. Dearing resumed his radio work in "Di-of Phi Beta Kappa; the National Board of Directors, the College English Association; and of the American Association of University Professors. Well known as a scholar, Dr. Dearing is also author of several articles on literature and teaching.

Dr. Dearing has spent two periods of active service with the United States Navy; as an Air Combat Intelligence officer in the Pacific, and as an instructor in the Air Intelligence School in Washington, D. C.

Geasland Offers Eight-week Course To 16 In Fine Arts

In cooperation with the Abington YMCA, Beaver is offering a non-credit course in "Drawing and Painting," given by Mr. Frederick Geasland, instructor in fine arts.

The eight-week session began September 21 and meets Tuesday evenings from 8 to 10 o'clock in the art studios. There are 16 in the class.

The course covers the problems of preliminary drawing, light and shade, color, and composition working from costumed models.

The course is open to both men and women.

"Fanny's First Play" by G. B. Shaw To Be Presented by Theatre Playshop

"Fanny's First Play" by George Bernard Shaw will be produced by Theatre Playshop for its fall presentation. The play will be given on Thursday, December 10, and Friday, December 11, at 8:15 p.m. in Murphy Gymnasium. Miss Judith Elder, assistant professor of speech, will direct the production.

Try-outs for "Fanny's First Play" were held last Tuesday afternoon and evening, but the cast has not yet been announced.

The play contains seven male parts. Theatre Playshop has requested that anyone knowing of men interested in taking part in

"Review" Sponsors Freshman Contest

To encourage freshmen to submit work to the "Beaver Review," the college's literary magazine, the staff of the publication has announced a writing contest which will close October 16.

Marcelline Krafchick '54, editor-in-chief of the "Review," has said that although the contest is open to freshmen only, the upperclassmen are encouraged to continue contributing to the magazine.

Any form of prose or poetry, fact or fiction, may be submitted to either Marcelline or Dr. Margaret Hinton, associate professor of English and adviser to the publication, before the deadline date.

First prize will be a year's subscription to the winner's favorite magazine, and second prize will be a Roget's Thesaurus.

The names of the winners will be announced in the next "Beaver News" on October 23.

Reverend Bryant M. Kirkland, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Haddonfield, New Jersey, returns to Beaver College as guest speaker during Religious Emphasis Week, which will be observed on campus Monday, October 12, through Thursday, October 15.

Two Appointments Made This Year To Trustee Board

Two new appointments have been made to the Beaver College Board of Trustees, Dr. Raymon Kistler, president of the college, has announced. They are Dr. Althea K. Hottel and Mr. John H. Slater.

Dr. Hottel, dean of the Women's College at the University of Pennsylvania, is presently on a one year leave of absence, serving on a National Commission for the Study of the Status of Women.

A graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, Dr. Hottel also received her doctorate in philosophy from the same institution. She has been a high school teacher and has taught in college.

Dr. Hottel is former national president of the American Association of University Women and has also served as president of the Pennsylvania Association of Deans of Women.

Mr. Slater, who founded the Slater System in 1926, is now chairman and president of this company as well as of the seven affiliates in 23 states.

He was graduated from the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania where he received his bachelor of science degree in economics. He has been a member of the University of Pennsylvania faculty, and from 1926 to 1928 was an instructor in English and coach of track at Muhlenberg College, Allentown. Mr. Slater is a director of Planned Parenthood and a member of the Boy Scout Council.

Again Reverend Kirkland will speak to the students during chapel, Bible classes, and in informal sessions as he did two years ago on campus.

Reverend Kirkland will discuss the following topics: "The Essential Problem of Life," "The Alternative to Futility," "Run to Keep up with Yourself," and "Your Life by the Atomic Clock." He will also hold discussions on marriage.

Having received his bachelor of arts degree from Wheaton College, Reverend Kirkland attended Princeton Theological Seminary where he was graduated in the first academic group. He received his master of

Campus Chest Campaign Opens Oct. 20; Funds Expected To Reach Goal of $1,500

"If you care—then you will share" is the slogan of this year's Campus Chest Drive which will begin immediately after the Student Government Association meeting on Tuesday, October 20, and continue through Friday, October 30. Ellen Katz '55 is chairman of the program.

The goal is set for $1500 this year, to be supported by students, faculty, and administration. No maximum in the amount of donation has been set, but the minimum will be $2.50. According to Ellen, arrangements may be made to pay in two installments, the first due before October 30 and the second by November 15.

The chairman, encouraging individual and group donations, states that "last year Pentathlon sponsored a student faculty volleyball game and donated proceeds to the Campus Chest. I hope that other honorary organizations will offer their support to these worthy undertakings."

Associations included in the Campus Chest are two entirely student-supported fund organizations: the World University Service, which provides food, clothing, and textbooks to needy foreign students; and the National Scholarship and Service Fund for Negro Students. These two organizations and the new foster child from Korea receive the bulk of the contributions.

Also receiving a share are the United Fund which includes Community Chest, Mental Health Association, Salvation Army, Cerebral Palsy, American Cancer Society, Arthritis and Rheumatism Founda-

England Offers 12 Scholarships

Announcement has been made by the British government of 12 scholarships available to American students to be given annually for study in England. These Marshall scholarships have been offered as an expression of the United Kingdom's gratitude for our country's aid in the Program for European Recovery.

Candidates for the scholarships must be citizens of the United States and under 28 years old.

Further information concerning these scholarships can be found on the bulletin board at the head of the stairs leading to the Post Office.

Student Organization Schedules Dinner For Various Promoters of Fund Drive

Patricia Israel '55, chairman of the Student-Parent Organization, has announced that a Centennial Drive Dinner will take place tonight at 6 o'clock in the Beaver Hall dining room. According to Patricia, the purpose of the dinner is "to bring together the student committee and those people outside the school who are working to promote the fund drive."

Between 25 and 50 prominent businessmen and women will attend the dinner in addition to the 27 students working on the committee. Among those present will be Mr. Harry Kuch, chairman of the Centennial Drive in its off-campus aspects, and Mr. John Slater, newly appointed trustee, who is in charge of the corporations and foundations department of the drive. Mr. Kuch, acting as master of ceremonies, will introduce Dr. Edwin R. Rian, vice-president of the college, who will comment on the progress of the drive and its future possibilities. Other speakers will be Dr. Raymon M. Kistler, president of the college; Barbara Fleck Stitzinger, president of the Alumnae Association; and Patricia Israel, who will give a brief talk concerning the efforts and results of the student fund drive.

Commenting on the progress of the drive to date, Patricia stated that "at the moment, the Student-

Committee chairmen and their members were organized at the first Playshop meeting held on October 1. Polly Grew '54 was chosen stage-manager.

The committee chairmen for the play are: Marion Thayer '54, sets; Anne Ditzel '54, costumes; Sally Woodward, publicity; Constance Jenny '55, make up; Margaret Johnson '54, props.

Admission to the play will be free to members of the student body, faculty, and administration. To all others the admission fee will be $1.00. Theatre Playshop is a member of the Beaver Forum.

Jacqueline Clark '54 is the president of the theatrical organization. The other officers are Sally Woodward, secretary, and Ellen Katz '55, treasurer. Miss Elder is faculty adviser to the club.

Sophs' Spectacle To Be 3-D Dance In Murphy, Oct. 17

A "Dance in 3-D" will be sponsored by the sophomore class on Saturday evening, October 17, in Murphy Gymnasium. The dance, which is informal, will be held from 9 p.m. until midnight. Bill Hutlin's band will provide the music.

Joan Sweiger has been named the general chairman for the dance. The committee chairmen are as follows: Esther Parker, Orchestra; Barbara Bopp, Publicity; Blossom Custer and Ruth Korostoff, tickets; Anna Smith, decorations; Dorothy Hill, entertainment; Janet Carslake, refreshments; and Joan Cranmer, blind dates.

Chaperoning the dance will be Dr. Raymon Kistler, president of the college, and Mrs. Kistler; Dr. Ruth L. Higgins, dean of the college; Miss Florence Brown, dean of students; Dr. Dallas Buzby, professor of psychology and the faculty adviser to the sophomore class, and Mrs. Buzby.

Tickets for the dance will cost $2.00 per couple. They will be placed on sale next week.

'The Parliament of Foules' Convenes on Beaver Campus

by SALLY WOODWARD

The "Beaver News" staff has long felt that the only thing lacking in our school is a department of ornithology (a bird department). To compensate for this lack, we are going to conduct a short, but very scientific lecture on birds.

The Culture Vulture is a most colorful, Bermuda-shorted bird whose call is the mimic of the "New York Times" book and theatre review. Its track is easy to trace: loud classical music playing when it leaves its room, a French novel opened casually on the desk, or somebody else's theatre stubs tucked in its mirror. (Sign on the cage: "Do not feed me culture; I cannot digest it.")

The Harrowed Sparrow has at least one member of its species in every academic group. This bird flew into the intellectual labyrinth one day and has never yet been able to figure the way out. Its characteristic call is a constant chirping in Philomel-like tones, "I'm sorry but I forgot my book . . . I lost my notes yesterday. May I borrow yours for the exam tomorrow? . . . Oh, Professor, how silly of me! I completely overlooked your assignment."

The Crab Bird can be distinguished by its gentle call which issues forth every minute on the minute: crab, crab, crab. It dislikes all other birds except members of its own immediate species. The faculty doesn't know anything, the rooms are too small, the work is ridiculous, and the food is horrid. (Might we add here that although the crab bird complains continually about the food, it is quite a heavy bird.)

The Merry Canary is the direct antithesis of the crab bird. With its upturned, smiling beak this creature is the fine-feathered friend of all until there is trouble brewing in the nest. Then the merry canary flies off leaving his "friends" to work out their own problems. Some of the most frequent haunts of this bird are study hall, the library, or some other bird's room. Here he flits happily in and out humming a delightful song and slapping the other birds on the back. This bird has a very soft twitter which sounds something like this, "I'm not disturbing anyone, am I?"

The Bobbin Robin is characterized by the many multi-colored bobbins projecting from beneath its wing, and the heavy steel needles dangling from its beak. This bird is heard more than seen. All day the bobbin robin calls to its mate, "knit one, purl two . . ." The tinkling of knitting needles descending to the chapel or classroom floor is a constant reminder that the bobbin robin is with us always and ever.

In concluding our report there is one bird we have overlooked—the author of this article. A naturally shy creature, this bird has the habit of burying itself under a barrage of half-typed papers and emitting periodical groans. As it is unclassified, any suggestions from you will be an advancement in science.

"Maturity — For What?"

When Dr. Helen D. Bragdon spoke at our Founders' Day program last month, she made us more aware of the two groups of people that exist on a small college campus such as Beaver's. She referred to the "mature adult group and the young adult group."

Most of us students have long considered ourselves members of the former group. The word "maturity" has been used to describe us a great many times during our past Student Government meetings. And we venture to say that the adjective will again be overused this year, for the strongest argument we have to support our desire for relaxing certain social restrictions is that "when we reach college we are mature enough . . ."

We are old enough to know that when coming in from a late permission we should have consideration for those who have retired early and should try to keep from disturbing them. We are old enough to know, but are we mature enough to do anything about it?

Consideration or thoughtfulness for others is one of the greatest virtues a person can possess. But it is something that cannot be taught—as Dr. Bragdon has said, "The greatest values . . . are caught."

Neither our Student Government nor our Dormitory Council presidents can say enough about quiet when returning from late permissions. We ourselves must decide into what category we fall—the mature adult group or the young adult group.

We are not idealistic enough to believe that there will ever be absolute quiet when students return from late permissions. The situation can be improved, however, if each girl will only consider her date's behavior her responsibility.

"Maturity for what?" Maturity for ourselves and for those who are a part of our campus community.

Shavian Humor Brightens 'Misalliance'

by JANET GOLLER

"Misalliance," an exuberant, but serious comedy by George Bernard Shaw, is now in Philadelphia at the Locust Theatre for a two-week engagement which started Monday, October 5.

The setting by John Boyt and the costumes by Robert Fletcher suggest comedy at the mere sight of them; and Cyril Ritchard and Bury Fredrik deserve much praise for making enjoyable to a modern audience an early 20th century play.

The play, which has as its main theme various misalliances in marriage, is fast and brilliant, replete with epigrams and rich Shavian humor.

Using education as his secondary theme, Shaw makes the best of the opportunity to attack his favorite hates, representing each of his objectives in a different character. The poor judgement of Mr. and Mrs. Tarleton in choosing each other as partners in marriage is displayed again in the second generation. Youth, as portrayed in Bentley Summerhays, is good-natured—susceptible to moods and fits of crying. Robert Casper did very well as the undersized Bentley who is terribly impressed with his "brains."

Hypatia Tarleton, excellently portrayed by Jan Farrand, is Bentley's fiancée—not because she is in love with him, but because she "must marry someone." She proceeds to chase Joey Percival, played by Lee Richardson, who will produce a more perfect human than would Bentley.

Lord Summerhays, played by George Turner, is a likable older man who has become infatuated with Hypatia. The character of Mr. Tarleton, which is beautifully executed by Martyn Green is wide open for Shaw's attacks on the respectable, pseudo-intellectual, self-made man. His wife, played extremely well by Dorothy Sands, has a high sense of false morality.

Lena, a young, attractive Polish acrobat, well played by Katherine Sergava, is the independent woman to whom all the men propose love. Her feeling that she is too good for all of them is in contrast to Mrs. Tarleton's high regard for the aristocracy. Hugh Thomas is outstanding in his minor role of the gunman who turns out to be Tarleton's son; Robert Fletcher did not do so well in his bit as Johnny Tarleton.

In And Around Philadelphia

As the autumn cultural season opens here, the list of events occurring in and around Philadelphia looks wholesome and exciting. Because of the full program offered this week and in the near future, we were unable to include everything in our allotted space. However, in the following paragraphs we have listed the activities that we think will interest you the most.

Tomorrow the Philadelphia Museum of Art will open its new gallery, Costume of the Twentieth Century. Also opening at this museum tomorrow will be two exhibitions: Paintings by Philadelphia Artists; and the Ephrata Cloisters, an exhibition consisting of photographs and lithographs. Guided tours of the museum are conducted each Saturday afternoon at 2 and 3:30 o'clock. The museum is located on the Parkway at 26th Street. To get there from this campus, take the Jenkintown train to Spring Garden Street and from there take street car 43.

In the theatrical world Bernard Shaw's comedy, "Misalliance," starring Martyn Green, continues at the Locust Theatre. Tickets for this play, and for most of the plays, range from $1.30 to $3.90. They may be obtained at the box office or through the mail. Matinees for "Misalliance" are given on Thursday and Saturday. "The Ladies of the Corridor," a play by Dorothy Parker and Arnaud d'Usseau, is now playing at the Walnut Street Theatre every evening and on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons.

Hedgerow will open its winter season in the Academy of Music foyer, Friday, October 16, with Bernard Shaw's "Man and Superman." "A Phoenix Too Frequent" will be presented by Hedgerow on Saturday, October 17; Wednesday, October 21; and Thursday, October 22.

Eugene Ormandy will conduct the Philadelphia Orchestra at the Academy of Music tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock. The concert will feature Mack Harrell, baritone, who will sing Scene II of Rachmaninoff's opera, "The Miserly Knight." Sadler's Wells Ballet will perform at the Academy Tuesday, October 13, through Friday, October 16. The company will give matinee performances Thursday, October 15, and Saturday, October 17.

We Must Help To Save Indo-China

All too few Americans are more than partly aware that for seven years French and native Indo-Chinese forces have been fighting desperately and destructively in terms of manpower in the jungles and rice fields of Indo-China. The French alone have lost 35,000 more men in combat than the U. S. lost in the three years of the Korean War. With the Korean truce on the way last spring and no military successes on recall in Indo-China, many French leaders were about ready to withdraw and cease blocking the Communist march through Southeast Asia.

But now, only months later, there is much determined hope in the air. This hope stems directly from two sources. The first is the energy and ability of the new French commander in Indo-China, Henri Eugene Navarre, and a movement on the part of the French government to move the three Indo-Chinese kingdoms more surely towards independence.

The second source of hope comes from the U. S. Washington has decided to add $385 million to the $400 million in aid already scheduled for Indo-China in the next year. On the ideological side Secretary of State John Foster Dulles recently announced that intervention in Indo-China by Red China "could not occur without grave consequences which might not be confined to Indo-China". Certainly the U. S. commitment in Asia has progressed far and we think wisely, yet largely without popular knowledge or support. Yet the administrative actions are essential even to the selfish welfare of the United States and its people. The French are still apparently willing to defend what to them are lost colonies. We must be prepared to do the same if necessary.

YWCA Members Are Installed Into Organization

Joyce Hoffman '54, president of the Y.W.C.A., installed the cabinet members at a candlelight service in Taylor Chapel on September 1. Other officers for the coming year are: Adelle Bovenkerk '54, vice president; Catherine Gunsalus '56, secretary; and Janet Murray '55, treasurer.

Cabinet Members are Susan Rhodes '56, Joan Mower '55, June Bohannon '55, Winifred Wesner '55, Jean Nazzaro '54, Ruth Denker '56, Kay Harris '56, and Dorothy Magnuson '54.

Barbara Dougherty '56, and Joan Sweiger '56 were also sworn in as associate cabinet members. All 135 of the Y.W.C.A.'s members were officially recognized in the organization at this service.

Joyce has announced that among the many activities for the coming year will be an Orphan's picnic, the annual Thank Offering before Thanksgiving vacation, a Christmas pageant, and the Orphans' Christmas party.

The student members of the Y.W.C.A. also have membership in the world Student Christian Federation, an international organization which has its offices in Geneva, Switzerland.

This year the national Y.W.C.A. is making plans for its Centennial in 1955. The aims during the Centennial Year are to increase the membership by 10 percent and to raise a Centennial fund of $132,000.

Varsity Loses 4-3 Thriller In Game Against Alumnae

Beaver's alumnae edged out the varsity 4-3 in a hard fought opener last Saturday on the hockey field.

In the first 12 minutes of the game alumna Jane Triol '46, scored twice and varsity captain Marlene Lochner '55 racked up one for her team. But throughout, Marlene was handicapped by the excellent guarding of Jane Oswald '52. Edna Scott '50 came through for the alumnae in the last minute before the half, making the half-time score 3-1 in favor of her team.

Triol made the alumnae's last goal in the first four minutes of the second half, with Deniker and Lochner scoring in rapid succession for the varsity.

The rest of the second half was played without either team making a goal, but in the last few seconds the alumnae were awarded a penalty bully. Eileen Meaney and Jane Triol took the ball out. Eileen hit it out of the circle, thus ending the game, and holding the alumnae to a 4-3 victory.

In this first game of the season, the varsity showed excellent teamwork with the freshmen filling vacancies left by last year's seniors. This first loss has no effect on the season's score which from all indications will be good.

Joan Sweiger '56 played on the side of the alumnae who were short one player.

Each year alumnae players return for a hockey match which opens the season for the varsity.

French Club Holds Its First Meeting

Elinor Towell '56 was elected secretary of the Rendezvous Francais at its first meeting of the year last Tuesday in the Day Students' Room. This club, for students of French and for any other girls interested in the language, was formed on campus last May.

After the meeting, the club was entertained with a radio-type skit, "John and Marsha," a parody of the soap-opera, and by Joan Reeve '56 who performed "The Girl With The Flaxen Hair" on the piano. June Bohannon '55 taught the members of the club the "La Marseillaise," the French national anthem.

Other club officers, elected last year, are Roma Gizang '55, president; Leah Kresge '55, vice-president; and Ellen Katz '55, treasurer. Advisers are Dr. Angela W. Preu, associate professor of French, and Miss Suzanne Gilliotte, instructor in French.

This week we will crawl out farther on our somewhat precarious limb, and do a bit of prophesying. While none of our opponents are unbeatable, we hope, Temple and Ursinus seem to be the toughest of the season. They appear second and third on the schedule and are only a week apart. Our starting line-up is almost complete and consists of either four or five freshmen, an unusual compliment to the incoming class.

discussion on "The A.A. Program in a Woman's College."

We hope all of you went to the Alumnae game and renewed old acquaintances. The only faces we recognized were Betty King and Molly Kern, from the class of '53, and Norma Golder Brunswick '54. From the class of '50 were Edna Scott, Bert Mills, Helen Kneezel, and Bea Markwich. Caryl Ulmer Fulton '51 was also on campus along with Margaret Bonesteel, Jane Oswald, and Phyllis Saxton, all from the class of '52.

The alumnae missed Duffy Moffet and Elinore Pepper Merkh, both '46, who are American Hockey Players, now in England with the U. S. touring team. This is the first game they have missed since they were graduated from Beaver.

With Mary Weighell '54 as general chairman this year, the A.A. is sponsoring a variety of activities, among them golf, archery, swimming, and volley-ball intramurals, and the A.A. show later in the winter. Let's go out for these teams and support them! You'd be surprised what exercise will do for the waistline!

Beaver Among Six Church Colleges Represented At Presbyterian Meeting

At a meeting held Monday and Tuesday at Wilson College, Chambersburg, representatives of six Presbyterian colleges in Pennsylvania discussed mutual policies and ways to bring their problems to the attention of the churches of the Synod of Pennsylvania. Miss Marjorie Darling, director of admissions, and Thomas Barlow, college comptroller, went from Beaver.

According to Mr. Barlow, pictures were shown portraying the characteristics of Beaver and the other colleges represented. They will be presented to the various churches throughout the state.

Other colleges besides Beaver and Wilson taking part in the conference were Grove City College, Lafayette College, Lincoln University, and Waynesburg College.

Last year, after the convention, a Sunday was set aside in all the Presbyterian churches for individual study of these college programs.

Repeat Performance Is Given By Sophomore Roommates

by JOAN CRANMER

"Like mother, like daughter." This old adage doesn't very often hold true, but in Ann Riker and Sandra Cohen's case it does. Sandra and Ann, both sophomores, are roommates in Montgomery Hall, just as their mothers were in Beaver Hall 24 years ago.

Mrs. Cohen and Mrs. Riker, then Eunice Singer and Blanche Silver-school and high school together, but were surprised to learn they had both been accepted at Beaver. Both girls are merchandising majors.

Mrs. Cohen and Mrs. Riker led much the same life in 1929 as Ann and Sandy do today. They went to football games and parties and into Philadelphia shopping. One day last year Mrs. Riker took the girls into man, roomed together on third floor Beaver for six months in the year 1929. During that time they shared in the various college activities, among them double-dating. When Mrs. Riker invited her roommate home with her one weekend, she had an opportunity to introduce her to a Mr. Cohen, who was a guest at a tea in the Silverman home.

At Christmas time of that year the future Mrs. Riker left Beaver, but the friendship was not ended. Blanche Silverman Riker was married just one week before Eunice Singer Cohen, and the two roommates made their permanent homes within five blocks of each other in New Rochelle, New York. Ann and Sandra were born the same year, Ann in February, and Sandra the following October. Sandra has an older brother and a younger sister, and Ann has a younger brother.

Honors Day

bers of Lambda Delta Alpha, the college's senior honor society, will be brought at the exercises by Mrs. Clara Taylor Harveson '38.

The names of this year's members of the honor society will also be announced along with students holding departmental honors and other honor awards. At this time each year Beaver recognizes those girls who have excelled scholastically during the past academic year.

Initiation of the new members of Lambda Delta Alpha will take place the same day at 5 p.m. in Dean Ruth L. Higgins' office. Following the initiation, there will be a dinner in the faculty dining room for invited guests.

Members of the Honor's committee in charge of the program are: Dr. Belle Matheson, professor of English, chairman; Dr. Ruth L. Higgins, dean of the college; Dr. Doris Fenton, professor of English; Dr. Angela Preu, associate professor of French; Mr. Benton Spruance, professor of fine arts; and Dr. Everett Townsend, professor of Business Administration.

Invited to the dinner are the members of the committee; Dr. Raymon Kistler, president of the college, and Mrs. Kistler; Dr. and Mrs. Dearing; Miss Bertha C. Peirce, for many years chairman of the committee and former chairman of the classical department; the new members of Lambda Delta Alpha; heads of the departments in which the new Lambda Delta Alpha members are majors; and alumnae members of the senior honor society.

Psi Chi and AKA Initiate Eleven Into Societies

Two national fraternities at Beaver, Alpha Kappa Alpha, honor society in philosophy, and Psi Chi, honor society in psychology, initiated their new members last week. Nine were initiated into Alpha Kappa Alpha and two were taken into Psi Chi.

Arlene Adler '54 and Suzanne Gorlin '54 were formally initiated last Wednesday evening into Psi Chi. Preceding the ceremony which was held in the Athletic Association room, a dinner was held for all of the Psi Chi members in the faculty dining room.

To be eligible for a membership in Psi Chi a student must have 12 credit hours in psychology resulting in a B average. The student must also have a C plus average in all other courses.

The year's officers of Psi Chi are: Cynthia Baketel '54, president; Jean Nazzaro '54, vice-president; Jane Van Dyke '54, corresponding secretary; Joan Connolly '54, recording secretary; and Joan Zimmerman '54, treasurer. Dr. Dallas Buzby, professor of psychology, is the faculty adviser to the organization.

Alpha Kappa Alpha initiated their new members last Tuesday evening in the A. A. Room. The new members include Arlene Adler '54, Adelle Bovenkerk '54, Betty Ann Gandrup '54, Shirley Kiefer '55, Barbara Rothman '54, Ruth Sauter '54, Diane Waxler '54, Barbara Weinfeld '54, and Eileen Yusem '54.

Requirements for becoming a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha are a B average in philosophy courses taken, and at least a C plus average in the rest of the student's grades.

Bolyn Ramos '55 is president; Joan Zimmerman '54, vice-president; and Lois Young '54, secretary-treasurer.

Student Dinner

Parent Organization is concentrating all efforts towards a most successful Parents Day. The main feature will be a carnival-type event in which each of the eight student teams will participate. All co-operation and enthusiasm on the part of the students will be appreciated. If everyone does her bit to support and encourage us, we'll go over the top in our goal and be on the Grey Towers campus before we know it."

After dinner, the group will be entertained by Ellen Katz '55, reading the dramatic poem "Look What You Did, Christopher," by Ogden Nash. The poem commemorates the celebration of Columbus Day. June Bohannon '55, accompanied by Joan Reeve '56, will sing "Villanelle" by Eva Dell'Acqua while Shirley Delmage '56, also accompanied by Joan, will sing "The Lass with the Delicate Air" by Michael Arne. A piano solo, Chopin's "Scherzo," played by Janet Murray '55, will complete the varied program.

Giving incentive to student participation in the Glenside move is knowledge of the building projects at the University of Ohio, made possible through student enthusiasm.

Women's Club Has Flower Show

A flower show will follow the meeting of the Beaver College Women's Club which is being held in Beaver Parlors on Wednesday, October 14, at 2 p.m.

Mrs. Arthur Lakey is chairman of this third annual flower show which will begin at 2:30 p.m. Mrs. Lillian Basset, a former Beaver student and faculty member, as the guest speaker will give instructions on flower arrangements.

Last May the Women's Club presented a gift of $200 to Dr. Raymon Kistler, president of the college, for the fund raising campaign.

Officers of the club are Mrs. Robert Patton, president; Mrs. Henri Morin, vice president; Mrs. George Appel, treasurer; Mrs. Charles Appin, recording secretary; and Mrs. Frank Grigg, corresponding secretary.

Homeless Korean Child Finds Mothers Many Miles Away On Beaver Campus

Won Chong Soo

A smart little lass, friendly and talkative, is Won Chong Soo, the homeless nine year old Korean whom Beaver students, as foster parents, are adopting this year.

Won Chong is replacing Nadia Thonet, the students' adopted child for the past four years, who is now almost seventeen and self-supporting.

Won Chong, with her mother, her fifteen year old sister, and her five year old brother, is now living in a crowded refugee camp in Pusan. Help has finally come to the family after several years of hardship and terror.

Won Chong's father was a prosperous owner of a large textile business in Seoul. After his death from a throat ailment, the family was left almost destitute and in that condition remained for the Communist invasion and occupation of the city.

In 1950 they fled from Seoul when their home was bombed and all their possessions lost. After weeks of traveling on foot and getting food wherever they could, they arrived in Pusan, where they are now living.

Won Chong is in the second year of primary school and is particularly adept in language, music, drawing, and gymnastics. She plans to be a school teacher when she completes her education.

Letters to Beaver's adopted child should be addressed to Won Chong Soo, k-545, c/o Foster Parents' Plan for War Children, Inc., 55 West 42nd Street, New York 36, N. Y.

Funds for the child will be taken from the Campus Chest Collections.

National Board of Foreign Missions and Mr. Ralph Stribe, assistant pastor of the Calvary Presbyterian Church in Wyncote.
