

Gandrup To Speak On Radio Program

Betty Ann Gandrup '54 will discuss "The Right to Worship God in One's Own Way" on the radio program "Freedom Challenges Youth," which will be broadcast on Sunday, October 25, at 1:30 p.m. over station WPEN. The program is the first of a series of sixteen or more weekly discussions on the rights and responsibilities inherent in the freedoms of the American way of life.

Mr. Robert D. Breth, instructor in human relations and communications at Drexel Institute and Lehigh University, will conduct the program and moderate the panel. Each panel consists of four or five students from colleges and universities in the Philadelphia area.

Barbara Rothman '54 and Bolyn Ramos '55 will represent Beaver on later panels. Each week a different freedom will be discussed.

Following each panel discussion, a dramatic skit will portray the use or abuse of the particular freedom. The speakers will then discuss ways of improving the use of the freedom.

The program will sponsor audience participation and award a savings bond to the listener who writes the best essay-letter on the freedom discussed. The panel discussion segment of each program will be recorded for re-broadcast throughout the country.

New Books Added To Beaver Library

Funds amounting to approximately $180, donated by last year's graduating class, are being used to buy books which add flavor to the basic library, said Miss Mary Wheatley, college librarian.

Miss Wheatley explained that books on many subjects have been chosen, including works such as "Kiss Me Again, Stranger" by Daphne DuMaurier; "Beyond This Place" by A. J. Cronin; and "Man From Main Street" by Sinclair Lewis.

Other books included in the purchase are: a biography, "Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Apprentice" by Frank Freidel; "Power of Positive Thinking" by Norman V. Peale; and "Critical History of Children's Literature" by Cornelia Meigs.

Also available in the library are new books on the theatre, music, religion, and travel.

According to Miss Wheatley, a great many books in the library's collection have been gifts from graduating classes. The class of '51 began a new trend by stipulating a sum to be used for the purchase of records, which can be borrowed from the library.

The largest amount to be donated by an individual for the purchase of books was $500 to be used in securing history books, Miss Wheatley stated.

Approximately 150 Expected At Parents' Day Tomorrow

Parents' Day, sponsored by the Student-Parent Organization, will officially begin tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. At this time an expected 130 to 150 parents will be registered and given name tags.

At noon a lunch will be served in the dining room for all of the parents and the students. A fee of 75 cents will be charged.

Following the lunch a carnival, the major event of the day, will be held in Jenkintown Gymnasium and the hockey field, weather permitting. This event is being sponsored by the "Glenside" teams consisting of the entire student body.

Each of the teams will have its own booth, at which various entertainments and contests will be available. Every conceivable amusement from bowling to a Dutch auction with Mr. Edward Green, assistant professor of sociology, acting as auctioneer, will be offered. Some of the other activities at the carnival will include a miniature

Carradine To Star At Beaver

John Carradine, Shakespearean actor and Hollywood Star, will give a dramatic recital in Murphy Chapel on Tuesday evening, November 3, at 8:15 o'clock. Mr. Carradine describes his numbers as recitations instead of readings.

The actor recently starred on

Broadway with Martita Hunt in "The Madwoman of Chailot," with Ruth Gorden in "The Leading Lady," with Elizabeth Bergner in "The Cup of Trembling," and as the Cardinal in "The Duchess of Malfi." He has toured the country with his own Shakespearean Repertory Company, playing "Hamlet," "The Merchant of Venice," and "Othello."

As a Hollywood actor, Mr. Carradine has starred in such pictures as "Les Miserables," "Prisoner of Shark Island," "Mary of Scotland," "Grapes of Wrath," "Jesse James,"

John Carradine

"Captains Courageous," "Richelieu," "Winterset," "Under Two Flags," "Blue Beard," and "Captain Kidd."

In summer stock, he has starred in "Arsenic and Old Lace," "Rain," "The Royal Family," and "My Dear Children," as well as in many Shakespearean plays.

John Carradine was born in New York, the son of a poet and London correspondent for the "New York Times." His grandfather was an eminent Mississippi Methodist Divine and Evangelist.

When Carradine was quite young, his family moved to Philadelphia where he attended the high schools and the Graphic Arts School.

The actor's theatrical debut took place in New Orleans at the St. Charles Theater. Following this by a season of Tent Repertory, he went to Hollywood where he was employed as Scenic Designer to Cecil B. DeMille.

Since the start of his career, 25 years ago, John Carradine has appeared in over 100 plays and 225 motion pictures. Beginning in 1928, the now internationally famous star

Bohannon Named To NSA Office

June Bohannon '55 was recently elected National Student Association Vice-president of International Relations for the Middle Atlantic Region, at a meeting at Swarthmore of the executive board.

As vice-president, June's position entails keeping in contact with foreign student organizations and distributing information concerning these organizations within the Middle Atlantic Region. She is also responsible for familiarizing visiting foreign representatives in this area with the activities of the National Student Association.

June is well-equipped for the position, having had much experience in the field of international affairs. In her senior year of high school, she was a delegate to the United Nations conference in New York and interviewed the French Ambassador, and that summer she attended a World Affairs Camp during which experts in various fields of diplomacy lectured to the large group.

As a representative at the United

Four Admitted To Lambda Delta Alpha; Slade Presented With Silver Trowel

Elizabeth McCann Alsentzer, Margaret Jackson, Mary Jane Slade, and Ruth Weber were presented as new members of Lambda Delta Alpha, senior honor society, last night at the annual Honors Day program in Taylor Chapel. These girls have maintained an accumulative ratio of at least 2.5 for six semesters. Mary Jane, who has had the highest grade-point ratio in her class for the past three years, was also recipient of the Silver Trowel for that honor.

The Presidents' prize was awarded to Janet Murray, the junior with the highest grade-point ratio for the past two years. Susan Rhodes, with the highest grade-point ratio of the sophomores, received the Dean's prize.

Dr. Bruce Dearing, assistant professor of English literature at Swarthmore College, spoke on "The Moods of Modern Poetry."

During the program students attaining departmental honors were also announced. They are: Irene Mack, Marjorie Sisson, and Miriam Stybel, biology; Margaret Jackson, business administration; Ruth Weber, fine arts; Mary Sturgeon, history; Elizabeth Alsentzer and Anita Ruff, elementary education; Mary Jane Slade, music; and Arlene Adler and Teruko Ohashi, sociology.

Speakers Discuss College Organizations At Freshman Orientation Meetings

"Review" Contest Won By M. Spare

Margaret Spare has been selected as winner of the first freshman writing contest sponsored by the "Beaver Review," the college literary magazine. The winner was announced recently by Marcelline Krafchick '54, editor of the magazine.

The prize winner submitted a poem entitled, "On Rodin's Statue, 'Eternal Springtime'." Margaret stated that she wrote the poem after seeing the famous statue in the Philadelphia Museum of Art.

For her prize, Margaret will be given a one-year subscription to the magazine of her choice. The poem will appear in the first issue of the "Beaver Review," which will be distributed to the student body.

Art Contest Held For High Schools In Phila. Area

"A Century of Progress in Education for Women" is the theme of the Beaver College Centennial Art Contest, which is open to women students in high schools in Philadelphia and eight adjacent counties. Projects should be submitted to Benton Spruance, chairman of the Beaver College fine arts department, by April 1, 1954, and winners will be announced April 30.

Awards will be presented to winners in two divisions: the college candidates and the non-college candidates.

The first prize to the college candidate winner will be a half tuition scholarship to Beaver College for four years. The second and third prizes will be scholarships to the college for $150 a year and for $100 a year respectively for four years.

The winner of the first prize in the non-college candidate group will receive art materials and equipment. The rewards for those in second and third place will be an art kit and sketching materials, respectively.

Entries, in the form of projects depicting the theme, may be bulletin board displays, posters, oils, or murals, singly or in groups. Final presentations of each entry may be a single unit or may be composed of any number of units, expressed

Ineligible List Of Last Semester Reported By Dean

Dr. Ruth L. Higgins, dean of the college, has announced that 16 of last year's members of the student body were ineligible for return this year.

At present there are on probation 21 students with a freshman academic standing. Twelve upperclassmen are on probation, according to the dean.

A student must have at least a C average in order to advance into the next class, she said.

The following minimum requirements in quality points and credits are needed to advance into the next class: freshmen 13 points, sophomores 42, juniors 74, and seniors eligible for graduation, 128 points.

In and Around Philadelphia

The last week of October closes with a full calendar of events scheduled in and around Philadelphia. So excited are we about the return of Margaret Sullivan, the magnificent star of "The Deep Blue Sea," that we must announce it right here in the beginning of this column. Miss Sullivan opens this Monday, October 26, with Joseph Cotten in Samuel Taylor's new comedy "Sabrina Fair," at the Forrest.

Continuing for another week at the Shubert is "An Evening with Beatrice Lillie" starring Bea Lillie and Reginald Gardiner. According to Brooks Atkinson of the "New York Times" this musical revue is "an evening of comic perfection."

Parked in Philadelphia for one more week is Howard Teichmann and George S. Kaufman's "The Solid Gold Cadillac" starring Josephine Hull. This comedy is now playing at the Locust.

"The Trip Bountiful," at the Walnut gives theatre-goers a rare opportunity of seeing actress Lillian Gish who has been absent from the Philadelphia stage for fifteen years. This drama by Horton Foote is one of the few serious plays on the local boards.

The Philadelphia Forum will present the American Savoyards in Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Pirates of Penzance." This operetta will be given this Monday evening at 8:30 at the Academy of Music. The following evening, Tuesday, October 27, the Forum will sponsor "The Mikado" at the Academy.

The next Philadelphia Orchestra concert will be given on Friday afternoon, October 30, and Saturday evening, October 31, at the Academy. Eugene Ormandy will again conduct the orchestra, and the featured soloist will be Ervin Laszlo at the piano.

The exhibition "Whistler's Prints after Fifty Years" is still on display at the Philadelphia Museum of Art. A lecture in conjunction with this exhibition, "The Art of Whistler" will be delivered by Mr. John Baxter on Sunday, November 1.

One of the most exciting films to come our way recently is "The Robe," which continues in Cinema Scope at the Fox. This dramatization of Lloyd C. Douglas' novel stars Richard Burton, Jean Simmons, Victor Mature, and Michael Rennie. Moving up a few centuries and playing right next door at the Stanton is the biographical drama, "Martin Luther."

Club Notes

One only has to listen to the multitudinous announcements in the dining room to know that the various campus organizations are completely absorbed in their fall activities.

Canterbury Club, comprised of Episcopalian girls, promises to be very active this year under the direction of Nancy Hess '55, president. The group meets each Sunday evening at 6:30 p.m. at All Hallows Church in Wyncote. Mr. Paul Shoemaker showed movies of Africa and Iran to the group Sunday, October 18.

Also busy this fall is Hillel, the Jewish organization on campus. A discussion and entertainment program with a Hillel group from another school is planned for the near future. Bertha Goldberg '54 is president.

Members of the Newman Club, which consists of the Catholic girls at Beaver, were entertained at a dinner at the home of Mrs. Vincent DeWees in Jenkintown on October 20. The dinner was held especially for new students to make them feel that they have a home away from home.

Those who work in the library on Thursday evenings know that the Modern Dance Club has been practicing rigorously for the last few weeks. We think that you will not mind the few thumps heard when you see the dances the club is going to perform for the A. A. show in January. Florence Shafer '54 is the president of this group, and Miss Lucille Bretherick, instructor in health and physical education, is the director.

Psi Chi, the national fraternity in psychology, sponsored a candied apple sale in the dormitories on Wednesday. According to Cynthia Baketel '54, president, this organization will be one of the busiest on campus this semester.

The Red Cross is doing a superb job of entertaining hospitalized servicemen. Under the leadership of Francine Cohen '54 and Margery Diamond '54, co-chairmen, this club entertains the men at the Valley Forge Veterans Hospital every Wednesday evening. The Naval Hospital in Philadelphia is visited the second Tuesday of each month.

Bye, Bye, Blues!

Only one and a half months of the school year have passed and the loudest cry of the freshmen is that there aren't enough hours in a day to do all that is required of them. What with assemblies, freshman orientation, club and class meetings, and song contest rehearsals, the green-topped Beavers find no time for homework or sleep—so they say.

Beaver College freshmen need not think themselves alone in suffering from such a situation. All over the country students in the same position are faced with the same prob- lem, a problem that has probably existed since institutions of higher learning first came into being.

But in their search for sympathy, are the freshmen forgetting those "gab sessions" for which they are famous if not notorious? Are they forgetting those free hours during the day spent "just talking" — hours during which a great part of homework might be accomplished?

New students are not expected to fall into the proper study habits without an effort. On the contrary, they must work out a plan for work! With the help of student counselors, they should designate certain hours for specific subjects so that time is not wasted trying to decide what to study next.

As the freshmen progress in their college course, they will develop the art of note taking. And among other things they will learn to budget their time, so that they may do the amount of work expected of them as upper-classmen and yet still be able to hold school offices.

For some freshmen the task of learning how to study in an allotted amount of time will take longer than for others. And inevitably some will learn better than others. But all can certainly give this common task their best.

Life At Girton As Viewed By Beaverite

By JANET GOLLER

If you see a young lady speeding along on a bicycle toward the outskirts of Cambridge, England, you can be sure she's on her way to Girton, one of the two women's colleges in Cambridge University. Cambridge is a small town which practically revolves around the university.

The dormitory is built around a huge quadrangle which has its own tennis courts, bicycle racks, and plenty of space for sunbathing. All the girls at Girton have single rooms; some are blessed with two rooms, a bedroom and a sitting room complete with artificial fireplace. The girls are allowed to entertain in their rooms (yes, men, too), and it is not unusual to find a room filled with young men and women engaged in a rousing tea party.

In each corridor is a "gyp," a combination ironing room and kitchen which is always supplied (by Girton of course) with cake and tea which are at the disposal of any hungry girls who may or may not be dissatisfied with Girton food. Satisfaction is the general cry, however, in spite of the fact that there is more just cause for complaint in Cambridge than there is in Jenkintown.

The dining tables each seat twenty girls who are expected to clear their own tables of dishes and silverware. Almost any girl can be seen going to the cafeteria-style breakfasts and lunches with her own butter and sugar—highly rationed items in England.

Chapel is regularly attended in spite of the fact that attendance is not required. Besides the main library, there are a number of paneled rooms whose walls are lined with books, where the girls may either entertain or study. Smoking is permitted everywhere on campus except in the chapel and the library. Classes are not held on the Girton campus but in university classroom buildings.

In Girton and Newnham, the two women's colleges of Cambridge, there are about 500 girls in contrast to the some 4000 men of whom the rest of the university can boast. In spite of this the girls seldom date with the frequency and regularity that we do here. On occasion, the men's colleges do give dances; but for the most part, going out for cocktails, dinner, and dancing is unheard of.

At the entrance to Girton is a large gate—which is locked nightly at 12M., and girls have been seen climbing in through windows.

The girls at Girton, who find themselves fortunate enough to be at a residential center of learning, work harder at their studies than they do at bridge and knitting. They have a much healthier and more optimistic outlook on life than have American girls, in spite of the fact that world events have made a deeper and heavier dent in their comfortable living routine than they have in ours.

Our Privilege

The Rev. Bryant Kirkland, at the end of our Religious Emphasis Week, closed with these words—"it has been a privilege."

But the privilege was ours, for Rev. Kirkland is not only an educator and an eloquent speaker, but also an inspiration. Even if some of us missed the full meaning of his message, and even if those who did understand his thinking do not apply those thoughts to daily life, at least all of us had the opportunity, at some time during this special religious week, to individually consider his reasoned words.

To each of us, his messages may mean something different. But in essence they were all directed toward a growth "in the spiritual interpretation of life," as he termed it when he urged us to "grow, grow, grow."

To Rev. Kirkland for his generous, friendly guidance goes our gratitude.

With An Eye On Trieste . . .

Trieste, because of its strategic position both in locality and in international stability, has been the source of much controversy and tension during the past eight years. The World War II peace treaty divided the area into two sections: Zone A, which is administered by the joint occupation forces of the United States and Britain; and Zone B, which is under Yugoslav administration.

Last week, Britain and the United States announced their decision to withdraw their occupation troops from Zone A and to place administrative responsibility in the hands of the Italians, leaving Zone B under Yugoslav administration.

Because Trieste is a strong emotional symbol to the Italians, the people have responded with warm approval and have shown their support in strengthening the political position of Premier Giuseppe Pella. The Yugoslav reaction was one of violence, as Yugoslavs demonstrated against the United States and Britain, and Marshall Tito announced that Yugoslavia wants all the Free Territory except the city of Trieste, which he is willing should become an international port.

Understanding to some extent, these complications, we should watch with intelligent concern the development of an historical event important to the peace of the world.

Beaver Scores A 4-1 Victory In Clash Against Ursinus Team

Beaver won its first game of the season, 4-1 in a clash with Ursinus on Saturday, October 17, on the hockey field. The first half was scoreless, both teams playing very well and being almost evenly matched.

In the first few minutes of the second half, Ruth Warren '57 took the ball up the side of the field and put it in for Beaver's first score. The action went down to the Beaver goal for some close attempts before Harriet Swoyer '56 brought the ball back up to the middle of the field.

After several attempts by Beaver, Ruth Warren scored again just before Jean Lenox '57 bounced the ball off an opponent's stick and into the cage. The game see-sawed back and forth until Marge Dawkins scored for Ursinus after hard playing in the circle.

Peggy Sue '54 and Eileen Meaney '56 run down Beaver's hockey field to defend their positions during the game with Ursinus.

Rosemary Deniken '57 took the ball after a long hit by Harriet Swoyer and knocked it in past the Ursinus goalie for Beaver's last point. Beaver and Ursinus' jayvee teams tied 1-1.

This teamwork allowed Ursinus to tally only one goal.

Varsity To Play In Tournament; Will Vie For All-College Honor

With Ursinus as host this year, Beaver will participate in the annual Hockey Tournament to select All-College teams on October 31 and November 1.

In addition to Beaver there will be teams from the University of Pennsylvania, Temple, Swarthmore, Ursinus, Drexel, East Stroudsburg State Teachers' College, Westchester State Teachers' College, and a component team from Chestnut Hill, Immaculata, and Rosemont. It is hoped that Bryn Mawr will also be able to attend the tournament this year.

As the contest is planned, each of the teams will play two 25 minute games in the morning and one in the afternoon. A board of judges composed of the various coaches will choose 55 to 60 girls for final tryouts on the next day and from these, four All-College teams. Marlene Lochner '55, captain of Beaver's hockey team, was named a member of the All-College first team in both her freshman and sophomore years.

The weekend of November 6 the first and second All-College teams, as well as the third and fourth teams will play each other so that the players may become accustomed to each other.

These four teams will then play six teams from the Philadelphia Field Hockey Association on November 13, 14, and 15. After careful selection, four teams from these ten are chosen as representatives in the national tournament sponsored by the United States Field Hockey Association. This final tournament will be held at Hunter College, New York City, over the Thanksgiving holidays.

Maroon and Grey Trims Bryn Mawr 7-3 In Hockey

The Beaver varsity won its second hockey game of the season by trouncing Bryn Mawr 7-3 on the opponent's field.

Four of the winning points were made in the first half when Captain Marlene Lochner '56 led her team with the first goal, despite strong opposition on the defense. She also racked up a second goal by rushing through the ball after Jeanne Gerner's attempt to drive it in was stopped by Bryn Mawr's goalie.

Rosemary Deniken and Jean Lenox, maroon and grey freshmen, added two goals to make the half time score 4-2, after Bryn Mawr scored two.

In the second half Beaver's scorers were again Deniker, Lenox, and Lochner, each making one goal.

Banks, A. A. Prexy, Attends Meeting In Grove City

Delegate from Beaver to the Pennsylvania Division of the Athletic Federation of College Women in Grove City was Nancy Banks '54. She spent October 9, 10, and 11 at this annual state convention with delegates from the Athletic Associations in colleges throughout the state.

Friday afternoon was spent in a general session meeting. Friday evening was devoted to various committee meetings and to the election of next year's officers. Three groups to discuss programs in the various Athletic Associations were gathered, with Nancy leading the small women's college group.

Schools consisting largely of resident students and those primarily of commuters constituted the two discussion groups on Saturday morning. After this, the second general session meeting was held. In the afternoon the delegates enjoyed a lunch at the Grove City College Outing Cabin, after which the third and final general sessions meeting was held to complete all unfinished business.

Upper Moreland And Springfield Win In Play Day

Team two was the winner of the hockey game on Play Day held Saturday, October 17, on the hockey field. Upper Moreland provided the forward line and Springfield performed as defense. Sue Stringer '55, coached the girls.

Team one, composed of Cheltenham forwards and Jenkintown defense, came in second after losing to the winners in the play-off.

The girls who took part in the play day had lunch in the Beaver dining room and then went on a tour of the campus.

From The Bench

By JANIE

Hope you all saw the Beaver-Ursinus game. I think it was the best game I've seen all year, a real thriller.

The Beaver-Temple game ended 3-1 in favor of Temple. Temple lost only a few people from last year, so has kept their good line. Our defense was good, with the two freshman fullbacks playing exceptionally well. Everything considered, this game was encouraging as a starter.

The first volleyball intramurals have turned out with a victory for Montgomery which defeated the Day Students 40-23. Montgomery had so many people out, 18 of them played with the Day Students. Beaver Hall won 45-28 over Ivy.

Last Sunday, Mrs. Mack went to Harrisburg to coach the Mid-East Section of hockey consisting of six teams.

The possible theme for the A.A. show this year has been decided on—"Beaver girls on a weekend in New York"—where they go and what they do. Marcy Krafchick '54 is writing the script. Ought to be good.

Marlene Lochner, our varsity captain, went to play hockey in Harrisburg, Sunday, October 11, with a team of Philadelphia Associate Club players. They won the game 8-0; Marlene herself made 3 points.

Musicians Represent College At Regional Club Conference

At a meeting of the Philadelphia Regional Conference of the Pennsylvania Federation of Music Clubs, Dr. W. Lawrence Curry, professor of music at Beaver, and Mrs. Lois Hedner, instructor in music, conducted panel discussions. The meeting was held at St. John's Episcopal Church House on October 12.

The morning panel, discussing "Music For the Whole Church," was conducted by Dr. Curry, who is chairman of choirs for the state of Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Hedner led a discussion on "How Can the Student Musicians Be Served by the Senior Clubs of the Music Federation?"

She was also chairman of publicity for the conference and was elected conductor of the Ensemble of the Matinee Musical Club for this year.

Present at the convention were over 3,000 delegates representing ten million Protestant Evangelical and Orthodox women throughout the country.

International Flavor Brought To Beaver by Alumna, Student

Alumna Tells of Travel Abroad
By SALLY WOODWARD

Beaver gathers her students from all parts of the world and in turn sends them out to all parts of the world. Only one example of this exchange is Rebecca Shriver '33 who recently returned from a particularly exciting tour of southern Europe and the Middle East.

Miss Shriver majored in history while attending Beaver, and continued her work in this subject at the University of Pennsylvania and Teachers College of Columbia University. She then assumed teaching posts at various boarding schools. At the present she is teaching at the Lankenau School.

Last summer Miss Shriver was a member of the Lafayette Study Seminar which was sponsored by the American Friends of the Middle East. As a member of this group she was in a position which enabled her to interpret many of the important political events which made history.

Witnessed Violence

During the Rosenberg executions Miss Shriver was staying in Paris and witnessed the strong Anti-American demonstrations. She arrived in Greece just one day after the destructive earthquakes had occurred there. While she was visiting in Jerusalem for nine days, shooting riots happened every night.

In regard to the most pro-American countries visited, the attractive history teacher said, "The Greeks and Turks really do love us." However, Miss Shriver continued, "the countries of the Arab League have certain reservations about America." The Arab nations like us as individuals, but as a nation we have little prestige in that area," she observed.

According to Miss Shriver, former President Truman is not very well liked by the nations of the Arab League. They feel, she said, that Mr. Truman showed too much haste in recognizing the new republic of Israel.

Suggest Aid from U. S.

Much of the unrest in that section of the world is due to the loss of individual property, the alumna continued. "These people look to the United States for leadership," Miss Shriver cautioned in concluding, "If we don't provide the solution, they are likely to turn to Russia for aid."

golf course, a skill booth, a "revenge" booth, a cake sale, and a balloon shaving contest.

Prizes, donated by the students and members of the faculty, will be awarded from each of the booths. The winner will be given a colored ticket representing the booth where the prize was won. This ticket can then be exchanged for a prize.

Each team will be responsible for handling its own money, and the total amount collected will go toward the success of that particular booth in raising the thermometer goal to $50,000 for the building fund.

The "Glenside" team captains are: Joan Connolly '54, Sandra Henoch '55, Joyce Kramer '55, Helen MacLeod '56, Virginia MacQueen '56, Joan Ramsbottom '54, Enriqueta Sartoris '54 and Diane Waxler '54.

A tea for the mothers will be held in Green Parlors from 4 to 5:30 p.m. Mrs. Robert Patton, president of the Mothers' Club, will be hostess. Mrs. Frank Scott will assist her.

At the same time, in Taylor Chapel, the Fathers' Club will have a meeting. Mr. Malcolm Buckley, president of the club, will preside. Both of these meetings are being held to encourage closer parent-student unity and friendship.

Parents' Day will be concluded with a dinner in the dining room at 5:30 p.m. The charge for this meal will be $1.25 per guest.

Student Gives Impression of Country

by GLENDA LEE

"I find it very amusing that people in America think that Iran is filled with women wearing veils over their faces and men riding around on camels." This is the reply which Minoo Sartip '57 gave when she was asked to tell something about herself and her impressions since coming to this country.

"I lived in Teheran," she stated, "before I came to this country. It is a big, modern city, very much like the cities in America. We had every modern convenience."

Minoo, who came to America two years ago from Iran, is taking a pre-medical course at Beaver and hopes to enter the University of Pennsylvania Medical School when she graduates. She plans to become a doctor in order that she may return to Iran to help her people.

Of her country and her people Minoo says, "Freedom is in our blood and we are strong enough to run our own affairs. We are proud of our past and we are eager to build our own future."

In the two years that Minoo has been in this country, she has learned much and she appreciates every opportunity that she has been given. "One thing that I like about the United States," she remarked, "is that you have hockey and lacrosse. I never played those games at home." Judging by her performance on the hockey field, Minoo has acquired more than just a liking for one of those games.

produced, directed and played the title role in "Richard the Third." In 1929 he appeared with R. D. MacLean in "The Taming of the Shrew," "The Merchant of Venice," and "Romeo and Juliet."

In 1933 he played the title role in "King John" at the first Shakespearean Festival inaugurated by him in Pasadena. Subsequently he has played Hotspur in "Henry the Fourth," and Richard, the Duke of Gloucester in "Henry the Sixth." Returning to Shakespeare in 1943, he organized his own repertory company.

Kaplan Warns All At SGA Meeting About Permissions

A warning concerning late permissions was given at Tuesday's Student Government meeting by Dormitory Council's president, Rosalie Kaplan '54, who stated that "unless the students show an improvement in abiding by the rules during late permissions, the social privilege will be completely lost." She especially emphasized maintenance of quiet hour and getting in on time.

With Anita Ruff presiding, the student body voted in favor of the request to have a member of the administration speak to the group about the building plans now being considered.

Betty Ann Gandrup '54, president of Honor Council, reminded the association of the honor system code at Beaver, now that quizzes are being given.

Joyce Hoffman '54, president of the YWCA announced that since there were approximately 30 illegal chapel cuts taken last week, a seating plan will be used throughout the remainder of the semester.

Reports were given on procedure during fire and air raid drills by Mary Louise Adams '56, warden. Nancy Banks '54, first house president of Beaver Hall, stated that the smoker in that dormitory would close at 1:30 each morning.

Ellen Katz '55 also announced that the Campus Chest Drive is now in effect and that minimum donations have been set at $2.50.

guished honor list, having maintained at least a 2.5 ratio the past two semesters of 1952-1953, are: seniors, Elizabeth McCann Alsentzer, Margaret Jackson, Irene Mack, Teruko Ohashi, Mary Sturgeon, Jane VanDyke, and Ruth Weber; juniors Suzi Ketz, Janet Murray, and Bolyan Ramos; and sophomores, Theresa Bizzarri, Helen Condodina, Margery Griffith, Jean Jackson, Joan Reeve, and Susan Rhodes.

Girls on the Dean's list for the second semester of 1952-1953 are: Seniors, Cynthia Baketel, Joan Brostrom, Lois Chapman, Morita Field, Rosalie Kaplan, Carol Livingston, Barbara Rothman, and Joan Zimmerman; juniors, Barbara Brandon, Jessie Greenberg, Shirley Kiefer, and Ruth Kolb; sophomores, Mary Louise Adams and Toni Robin.

Honors Day exercises are held annually on campus to honor those who have excelled scholastically and to foster scholarship among the student body.

Dr. Belle Matheson, professor of English, and chairman of the committee in charge of the program, presided at the exercises. Dean Ruth L. Higgins presented the honors and Mrs. Clara Taylor Harveson '38 brought greetings from the alumnae members of Lambda Delta Alpha.

Mrs. Joseph Wald Discusses Abbey Theatre; Reads From Irish Plays

Mrs. Joseph Wald, former member of the Abbey Theatre of Dublin, gave readings in the Forum assembly Tuesday from Lady Augusta Gregory's "The Gaol Gate," Sean O'Casey's "Juno and the Paycock," and John Synge's "Playboy of the Western World."

In discussing the Abbey group, Mrs. Wald stated, "I can't help feeling I've had a very great privilege in being a member of the Abbey Theatre." While with the group, Mrs. Wald went on a tour of the colleges and universities of this country, where she and the other members of the Abbey presented the plays and lectured on them.

The inevitable questions asked on this tour were, said Mrs. Wald, "Why are you different? What does the Abbey have that others do not have?"

The former Abbey player explained that the atmosphere maintained by the group was "one that could not be put into words." It was "instinctively different" because no one was told what to do. The actors knew what to do instinctively, for most of them stayed almost all of their lives with the group. "And somehow in a group that has been working together for years and years, you can't help falling in line."

Miscellaneous clubs and organizations will be discussed on October 29. At this time Jacquelyn McRury Clark '54 will speak on the Theater Playshop and the Red Cross. Marcelline Krafchick will explain the nature and purpose of the "Beaver Review" and Johanna Manca '54 will similarly represent the "Beaver News." Florence Shafer '54 of the Modern Dance Club, and Ruth Wirth Sauter '54 of the Glee Club will also speak.

She also mentioned that a few of the players had been taken by Hollywood.

There is a no star system at the Abbey, according to Mrs. Wald. She remarked that there were "no grumbling, no questions, and no publicity" before, during, or after a performance.

All these distinctive factors, said Mrs. Wald, make the Abbey the "greatest acting group in the English language," as it has been termed, "without picking out one person."

in one of several techniques.

Winners will be announced on Friday evening, April 30, at 8 p.m. at a reception in Murphy Hall for the participants, their parents, and teachers. The exhibit will be open to the public for two weeks.

The following are the judges in the contest: Mr. Jack Bookbinder, painter and educator; Mr. John E. Canaday, chief of the division of education of the Philadelphia Museum of Art; Miss Rachel H. Cartledge, chairman of the Art department of Philadelphia High School for Girls.

The other judges are Mrs. Anna-bel T. Hawman, head of the art and music departments of Simon Gratz High School; and Miss Elizabeth Mongan, curator of graphic arts of the National Gallery in Washington, D. C.

BOHANNON NAMED

Nations Model Assembly at Cornell, June was a member of the Ad Hoc Committee, and while at Beaver she has participated actively in the International Relations Club for two years.

This past summer she attended an International Relations Institute at Ithaca which provided contacts with many foreign students.

Having an officer of NSA at Beaver should promote here a wider interest in world affairs.
