Ordway Tead Will Speak On Honors Day October 18

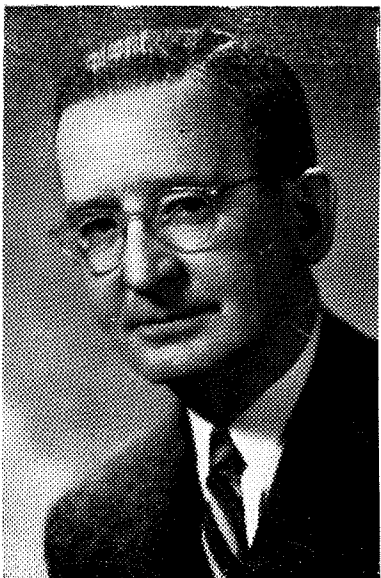

Dr. Ordway Tead, writer, editor, and educator, will be the speaker at Beaver College Honors Day on Thursday night, October 18, at 7:30 in Murphy Memorial Chapel.

Dr. Tead, a graduate of Amherst College, is the recipient of the degree of LL.D. from St. Lawrence University, Keuka College, American International College, Bard College, and Northwestern University. Amherst College and Brooklyn College have awarded him the degree of L. H. D.

During World War I, Dr. Tead worked for the United States government as a consultant and teacher in the field of labor relations. Formerly a lecturer in personnel administration at Columbia University, Dr. Tead is now there as a guest professor of industrial relations. He was also a faculty member in the New York School of Social Work for eight years.

In addition to being the author of thirteen books, Dr. Tead holds the position of editor of social and economic books for Harper and Brothers and is also a director of that company. He is chairman of the Board of Higher Education of

Dr. Ordway Tead

New York City and has been a member and consultant of the President's Commission on Higher Education. Since 1942 Dr. Tead has been chairman of the Board of Trustees of Briarcliff Junior College.

Dr. Tead's activities also include previous membership on the United States National Commission for UNESCO and present participation on the Executive Committee of the Board of the Institute of International Education.

Dr. Raymon M. Kistler, president of the college, will preside over the Honors Day ceremony. The academic procession will consist of seniors, honor students, the administration, and faculty.

Degrees in course will be conferred on three students on Honors Day. They are Dorothy Hill Claus, Rochelle Silberman Nimensky, and Sulamita Landes.

The announcements of honors will be made by Dr. Ruth L. Higgins, dean of the college. Honors will be conferred upon members of the Dean's Honor list. Departmental honors and class honors also will be awarded. Class honors include the Dean's prize, which is awarded to the sophomore with the highest grade point ratio for the freshman year, and the President's prize for the junior with the highest grade point ratio throughout the freshman and sophomore years. The silver trowel is awarded to the student who has maintained the highest grade point ratio throughout the freshman, sophomore, and junior years.

Nominating Council Proposes Plan To Change SGA Election Time

A term of office which would last from February of one year to February of the next year is the new plan which nominating council has been considering for the organizations of Beaver College.

Under the present system of terms of office, legislation stops in April and for one month in the fall. With the new February to February terms, there would be a constant flow of legislation carried over from one council to the next immediately except for a brief halt during the elections and until Move-Up night. The elections would be closer to the time of going into office. During this time the seniors would be available for help and advice.

Each term would start with a full council in February. There would be one semester without freshmen representation and one semester without senior representation. This would eliminate any possible changes in the quorum.

The new system would eliminate freshmen elections. During the first semester, freshmen would be under the guidance of their advisor. Instead of having freshmen class elections in December, they would be held in January at the same time as all other class elections. This would give the freshmen an extra month to think about their elections and become better acquainted with their fellow classmates. The new terminology for freshmen class elections would be "sophomore" class elections.

Officers would begin their term in February. They would work for one semester and become acquainted with their duties. During the summer vacation, officers would plan and formulate ideas, and when they returned to school in the fall, they could present their legislation immediately. The new freshmen would have the benefit of fully acclimated student leaders. Another argument for the proposal is that there would be one semester of certain ratios.

If the new terms of office begin in February, seniors will have one semester to devote to personal affairs.

If the new system is adopted, terms will be arranged in this manner. In 1956 Move-Up night was in May and officers would be serving until March 1957. Elections will be held in December and January of 1956 and 1957, respectively. Move-Up night will be in March and these officers will serve until February of 1958. Then Move-Up night would be in February 1958 and the system would be in complete operation.

The possible disadvantages of the new February to February term are that seniors would be serving for three semesters and the juniors would have to repeat themselves in office for the senior year.

Nominating council does not assume that the present system is poor. However, it was believed by last year's council and the present council that the new system of terms would be an improvement.

Book Club Chooses Dr. Cutright's Book

The new book "Theodore Roosevelt the Naturalist" by Dr. Paul Cutright, professor of biology, is the November selection of the Natural History Book Club, rather than Harper & Brothers, as stated in the September 27 issue of this newspaper.

A review of this book, a complete biography of Theodore Roosevelt as a naturalist, will appear in the first fall issue of the "Beaver Review."

Playshop Selects Fall Production, "The Enchanted"

Jean Giraudoux's comedy fantasy "The Enchanted" will be presented by the Theater Playshop December 12 and 13, on the Grey Towers campus.

One of the French contemporary playwrights, Giraudoux is the author of "Mad Woman of Chaillot" and "Ondine." Directing the play will be Miss Judith Elder, associate professor of theater. Anyone interested in committee work may see Nancy Wakely.

Young Voters Don't Care

"Only two out of five college students eligible to vote for the first time in the coming elections plan to exercise their democratic right," according to a survey of college first-voters published in the October 2 issue of "Look" magazine.

"The sobering fact of the matter," the researchers concluded, "is that a very large number of our young voters plainly don't care one way or another about the coming presidential election, or are so confused that it amounts almost to the same thing."

We don't believe this is true at Beaver College. In order to prove that Beaver students eligible to vote in the coming elections will do so and do know what the issues are, we want you to answer the same questions asked 1,300 students, at 24 different colleges.

If you are eligible to vote in the November 6 election, answer the questions in the following form and put it in box 114 in the post office. If you don't fill out the form, we shall have to assume that you are one of "the large number of young voters who don't care." The results will be published in the next issue of the "Beaver News."

1. Whom do you plan to vote for? (Eisenhower, Stevenson, Undecided)
If you're not voting, why?
 2. Whose political views most influence you?
 3. Would a candidate's appearance or personality influence you?
 4. What do you consider to be the most important issue?
 5. Are you a Democrat, Republican, or Independent?
 6. Do you think either party will split? significantly?
 7. Do television and radio influence you?
- Answer these questions and put in Box 114.

Party Candidates To Speak Here October 23

"Political Presentations," the assembly program to be sponsored by the International Relations Club, will be held in Murphy Chapel on Tuesday, October 23.

John P. Fullam, a democratic candidate running for Congress for the Eighth Congressional district, and the Honorable Hugh Scott, Republican Congressman for the Sixth district, will be the speakers. Each of the two men will speak for a period of 20 minutes. After each talk, there will be a 10 to 15 minute period for questions from the audience.

Mr. Fullam is a graduate of Villanova University and Harvard Law School and is now a member of the law firm of Eastburn, Begley & Fullam. He is presently Secretary-Treasurer of the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission.

Congressman Scott, a member of the law firm of White, Williams, and Scott, is the author of several publications, one of which is the book, "How to Go into Politics." He was the National Chairman of the Republican Party in 1948-49. He attended Randolph-Macon College, University of Virginia, La Salle College, and the University of Pennsylvania.

Assembly Cut Notices

Contrary to previous procedure, notices of assembly cuts will not be sent to a student each time a cut is taken. Because of the increase in enrollment, it was necessary to discontinue this practice. However, students will be notified when they have taken all three assembly cuts.

TB Association To Give X-Rays Here October 15

On Monday, October 15, the County Tuberculosis Association from Norristown will be on the campus from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. to give free chest x-rays to all students, faculty members, and employees of Beaver College.

The mobile unit will be located on the Jenkintown campus between the tennis courts and Montgomery Hall.

Last year the opportunity was offered only to freshmen and seniors as a part of their physical examinations. This year, however, the x-ray is open to all students but still required of freshmen and seniors. The chest x-ray has replaced the patch test which had been previously given.

Lists have been posted for those interested to sign up for an appointment for the x-ray, which takes only 30 seconds.

Sophomores Plan Carousel Medley For 'Hop' In Mirror Room Friday Night

Music from "Carousel" will be a feature of the annual "Soph Hop," to be held this year in the Mirror Room at Grey Towers. The informal dance, to which all Beaver students are invited, will be held on Friday night, October 12, from 9:00 p.m. to 12:00 midnight.

Ron Grober and his Quaker City Rhythm Kings from the University of Pennsylvania will provide a variety of dance music. Donna Graham, a Beaver freshman, will furnish entertainment before intermission by singing and playing a medley of tunes from the stage-play "Carousel."

Blind dates will be provided from Princeton and the various other men's colleges and universities in the surrounding area. Dates will be representative of all classes,

Various committees of the Hop and respective chairmen are: Refreshment Committee, Caroline Gailey; Band Committee, Jane Kroner and Linda Watkins; Chaperones, Leslie Mann; Publicity, Edith Hill and Toni Vit; Decorations, Jean King; Blind Dates, Doris Bach, Joan Katz, and Phyllis Goldberg; Entertainment, Marilyn Masters; and Ticket Committee, Barbara Ulmer.

Tickets are being sold this week in Beaver Lobby and girls from the freshmen through senior. Featured also will be door prizes, favors, and of course refreshments.

Co-chairmen of "Carousel" are Renée Isaacs and Joan Norman.

Class of '59 have been selling tickets in the dormitories. Price of admission is $3.00 per couple.

Dressy dresses and heels will be the proper attire for "Carousel."

A Byline For You....

We're looking for students who like to write and we think you might be able to help us. In fact, we're sure you can. Here's the story briefly.

Our policy is to require a journalism course of all students who want to write news stories and similar articles for the newspaper because news writing follows a definite pattern. Consequently, in the past many students have assumed that such a course is necessary in order to write any type of article for the "Beaver News." The result has not always been good for our various feature columns. That's why we are looking for students who like to write.

If you fit into this category, submit your work to the "Beaver News." Any type of feature suitable for newspaper publication — humorous verse or prose, a study of the political scene, a preview of winter fashions, a review of a new book, or a story about some campus activity — is your assignment.

After you submit your work, the editorial staff of the newspaper will give it careful consideration for use as space allows. Our decision as to whether it shall be published will depend on the following:

1. Pertinence of subject
2. Appropriate and good use of English
3. Originality
4. Overall effect

Please put all work you wish to be considered for publication in the "Beaver News" in Box 114 in the post office. With it enclose your name and college address. Don't be surprised if you see it in the next issue!

Ode to the forgotten

Oh weep, oh cry at such a tale
So sad — Oh gad! you'll cry no fail.
Our road of college life. Relied Upon to do the work, to run
To class, to be mature, to squelch their fun
And all of this they gladly do
Without a name; it's sad but true,
A Freshman's head turns vivid green
She wears a sign, At times may deem
To tip or hold a door. But all
The nameless mass may do is call
"Thank you Frosh!" Of course this mass
May bid a greenie do a task
Or two. But pray recall, with these
The thankless chores, they gain sans ease.
Their name — Upperclassmen, if you please.

Van Gogh Art Returns To Philadelphia In Motion Picture "Lust for Life"

by HELEN VINIARSKI

Sun-drenched yellows, growing greens, blossoming whites, blazing blues, blood-soaked browns—with these Vincent Van Gogh created a new world, a world that always will be uniquely his own.

This world embodied in Van Gogh's art perhaps compensated in some degree for the poignancy and actual tragedy of the man who never satisfied his "lust for life."

Irving Stone, a decade and a half ago, composed a "popular" novel, mediocre from a literary standpoint, that served to picture the man who had already attained fame as an artist.

Now Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has adapted this novel, "Lust for Life," into a motion picture of the same name, that is outstanding in several aspects and is more factual than the novel since it uses the letters and papers of Van Gogh. This movie is now playing at the Studio Theater in Philadelphia.

The use of a new photographic process to relay the colors that vibrate with light and the style of this impressionistic painter gives the audience a magnificent view of the works of Van Gogh. The subtlety of presentation of the paintings is to be commended, for this is not a wide-screen exhibition of a well-known artist.

The scenes which Van Gogh used for his inspiration are shown and gradually blended into the actual paintings. This method is employed particularly in the Arlesian group of his works, which in the viewing is a complete aesthetic experience.

A second notable feature of the film is the performance of Kirk Douglas as Van Gogh. Mr. Douglas captures the fiery spirit, the intense need to be loved, the creative genius that characterized Van Gogh through his facial expressions, his gestures, and his speech.

Anthony Quinn is not a convincing Gauguin, but the fault lies both in miscasting and in the attempt to contrast too pointedly the different artistic personalities and theories. As Theo, James Donald feelingly portrays the kindness and the quiet love of Vincent's brother.

Surprisingly the romantic interest that helped to make Stone's book a success is unpronounced in the movie; and Pamela Brown, as Christine, an ugly, almost middle-aged prostitute, whom Van Gogh embraced more as a wife than as a lover, plays with an art that is deficient only in the brevity of the role.

Because of the time limit in a motion picture, the motivation in certain facets of this film is questionable, as in the situation of Van Gogh and his cousin Kay, depicted sketchily by Jeanette Sterke.

In addition to the artistic and acting accomplishments, "Lust for Life" has another virtue: this film has a theme that is subtly evident throughout—the struggle of an artist as a being alone in the world, or more specifically or perhaps more universally, the struggle of a sensitive individual to find love.

With this theme as a center, Vincent Minelli as a brilliant director, the photographic process as a stunning supplement, this film should be a success, not as a commercial triumph, but rather as a work of art in direct relationship to the life it portrays.

Fall College Fashions Center Around Shirt-Dress, Tweed Suit, Long Gowns

by SANDRA KERN

Fall, 1956. What comes to your mind when you read this? The beginning of classes, football games, "big weekends"? Probably all these and more. But what was your second thought? Of course — the inevitable question. "What will I wear?"

The biggest style craze this season is the shirt-dress. No more the purely sport costume, this style has been made in an amazing number of variations. For that special date, the dress appears in a fine wool or acetate blend. The very same basic dress will appear next morning in the classroom. The difference will be in the fabric. This time it's the copy of the college man's shirt in dark striped cotton.

Bermuda shorts are still the standard uniform for comfort on campus. These are teamed with the crew-neck sweater, the man's shirt complete with button-down collar, and wool knee socks. The kilt skirts have become a little more popular this year and are appearing in plaids on a few courageous individuals.

Dress for a football game varies from school to school, but the trend is toward the dressed-up-but-sporty look. This is accomplished by wearing a suit with heels. The suit is tweed this fall, and is accessorized by very plain pumps in leather, a huge leather handbag, and neatly tailored pigskin gloves.

For that formal dance you've been invited to attend, the authorities will tell you that the long gown is beginning to make a come-back. However, instead of the large bouffant skirt, we now have a more slender, flowing silhouette. Also new are dainty gloves made to match the shade of the gown. These are both elbow length and wrist length.

This Is Your Life, Freshman

by BARBARA McCONNELL

Have you ever lain prone, nose and chin to the floor, trying to sing songs? Well, if not, you certainly are missing out. This exercise will do many things for you. It will — it is sure to — it uh — well, you can get your clothes dirty anyway! Ask any freshman.

College freshman — that is the thud one feels after being a senior in high school. All you need in order to be one is to be the proud possessor of a little "chapeau," a dazed look, and a pair of fast legs. The latter is not too important because the only time a freshman runs is when she's being chased.

The incoming freshman learns many things at Beaver in the first few weeks. For instance, you may have been brought up thinking that there is one basic color green. There are different shades, yes, but only one green. Well, you are wrong. Even a freshman knows that there are three greens: English Green, Sociology Green, and, of course, freshman green. (One freshman went into her room on the first day and found that her wallpaper was green. Her mother took her back home in a suitcase.)

A freshman also learns that she can survive on two things: the love of her student counselor and mail from "home" (Princeton, Lehigh, etc.). If she gets letters from any other sources, she is either going steady or else she sneaked off and did something the rest of the class didn't.

In case a war ever breaks out, the Beaver freshman is ready for the infantry. Her preparation is a three week course in Obstacle Crawling 101. She also has a uniform—the modern armies are not wearing helmets, but dinks—white shirts, and "you know what" color skirts.

Beaver College freshmen have become so prominent that even the Coca Cola people have realized their potentiality. They fired Eddie Fisher and are now using just one method of sales promotion in the form of a slogan: "Beaver College freshmen of distinction smoke, oops I mean, drink Coca Cola."

Of all the extra-curricular activities, dining hall (12:50-1:15) antics seem the most outstanding. Thus far there has been only one mishap. (How could anyone lean back in her chair, fall all the way back, and yet land in the middle of her own table? After she took one hand out of the spinach and the other from the meat, dinner was resumed. Through such experiences, however, the freshmen, who are not quite sure whether "greenie days" should be called hazing, dazing, or crazing, are learning table manners.

Freshmen go through some "hazing" exercises.

The latest in social etiquette is a standing position during meals. Certainly those who are able to lift a fork piled high with corn the three feet distance to their mouths deserve to become sophomores after the waiting period of a year.

As a result of the latter, a committee from the Class of 1960, has been formed to plan a major change. Specially built dining tables, twice as high as the present ones, will replace those now in use. So next year when the freshmen eat they will have a place to rest their elbows.

An incidental hint for upper classmen next year — one way to distinguish freshmen during "dink-less periods" is to look for girls with ring imprints around their heads.

With the Alumnae game on Saturday, October 6, the 1956 hockey season got underway.

Returning players include captain Rosemary Deniken, Shirley Radcliff, and Jean Lenox West, all of whom will be donning the hockey gear for the last time at Beaver.

Juniors Barbara Heylman, Maxine Swift, and Peggy Pierce, along with sophomores Margie Powers, Sue Douglass, and Betsy Walker will once again try for Scarlet and Gray victories.

The goalie position has been left open this year. Freshman Jean Stoll, who played goalie at Upper Moreland, and sophomores Julie Craig and Sandy Slovenz are likely candidates to fill the vacancy. Another open position, that left by Alice Blair at fullback, will probably be filled by either freshman Joan Borton or junior Martha Snyder.

Coach Mrs. C. has quite a few players to work with in training for future games. Sophomore Barbara Ulmer, freshmen Betty Ann Holton and Ann Carpenter look like promising varsity material.

Several freshmen who played varsity hockey in high school have reported for practice. These girls include Barbara Bentzinger, Nancy Graham, Betsy Heacock, Virginia Parsons, and Peggy Schenck.

This year Beaver has added to its schedule Gettysburg College whom it will meet on Saturday, October 13, immediately following the High School Hockey Play Day.

The Junior Varsity will compete against Chestnut Hill Varsity, Ogontz Center of Pennsylvania State University, and Gwynedd Mercy Junior College. Mrs. C. feels that there is good material on the team and that the team's record

Alumnae With 3 All-American Members Outplays Hockey Varsity For 3-1 Win

The Beaver Alumnae proved they haven't lost the old touch when they beat the Varsity 3-1 in the hockey game played October 6.

Boasting three All-Americans (Marlene Lochner, Elenore Pepper, and Jane Oswald), the Alumnae had the upperhand in the game.

Parsons, Graham To Lead Frosh In Song Contest

Leading the freshman class this year at Song Contest on November 20 will be Virginia Parsons and Donna Graham as leader and accompanist, respectively. These girls were elected by the freshmen at their first class meeting on October 2.

Changes have been made in the schedule of rehearsals that was issued earlier. The November 1 rehearsal has been cancelled. On October 15 and October 29 the rehearsals will be 30 minutes longer, making them an hour and a half instead of the usual hour. The sophomore dress rehearsal has been changed from November 15 to November 13.

In the case of conflicts between participation in Song Contest and other events, this year the girl must make a choice between events so that her full effort may be devoted to one activity at a time.

should be better than it was last year.

Be a sport, support your teams! Tuesday, October 9, Varsity plays Swarthmore at home. Thursday, October 11, JV will play Ogontz Center on the home field.

From the first bulley when Sue Douglass faked out Marlene Lochner, the game was exciting. The Varsity played good defensive hockey, but excellent stickwork and good passing were the key points in the Alumnae's success.

It seemed quite natural to see Marlene Lochner score the first goal. After quite a struggle in which freshman Jean Stoll repeatedly kept the ball out of the goal-cage, Edna Scott scored the second goal, which brought the score to 2-0 at the end of the first half.

In the second half Coach Conklin sent in Julie Craig as goalie, Barbara Ulmer, right wing, and Joan Borton, right back.

Elenore Pepper made the outstanding play of the game when she scored the Alumnae's third goal from near the right side of the field.

The Varsity never seemed to lose their spirit. Shortly after Pepper's goal they came back fighting, and finally captain Rosemary Deniken scored their only goal.

Ina Dolfman, chairman of the Republican Club on campus, distributes campaign materials to eager members.

Irma Vit, chairman of the Students For Stevenson Club, and several members examine one of their posters.

Political activity on campus is underway. It all started when the campus Republican Club and the Students for Stevenson Club held their first meetings last week. And it won't end until the mock election and national election returns are in on November 6.

Rallies off and on campus, party meetings, debates, registration, and voting will keep Beaver College busy for the four weeks. Interested students also will work off campus for the Republican and Democratic parties in Philadelphia County during this time.

The first outside speakers to enter the campus political scene will be The Honorable Hugh Scott, Republican Congressman from Philadelphia and a national committeeman, and John P. Fullam, Democratic candidate for Congressman from the Eighth District. They will speak in assembly October 23 at Grey Towers.

That evening the two political clubs will map out the rest of their campaigns in meetings at Grey Towers. Ina Dolfman is chairman of the Republican Club and Irma Vit, the Students for Stevenson.

On October 25 registration for the mock election will be held for the students, faculty, administration, and staff. Registration is required for voting just as it is for the national election.

With students and others as speakers, the two campus parties will hold a joint rally on the Jenkintown campus as their last formal campaigning effort. The speakers will discuss the various issues, with equal time allotted to both parties.

November 6 the campus polls will be open from breakfast to dinner in the four districts — Grey Towers, Beaver Hall, Montgomery Hall, and the Day Students Room.

Returns from each district will be announced that evening. These announcements will be made near the television sets in the different dorms, where first voters and many of the other students will be watching the returns come in from the national election. Before the evening is over, students will know if "as Beaver goes, so goes the nation."

Mr. Karl Weger Previews His Plans As Director of Department of Expansion

by IRENE MOORE

"Just tell them that I'm easy to get along with," smiled Mr. Weger at the conclusion of this interview. And we assure all those who have not met the new director of Expansion that this is true.

Karl Theis Weger, member of the Society of Friends, attended the Germantown Friends School and the University of Pennsylvania, where he majored in mechanical engineering. Mr. Weger and his wife, Madeleine Paine Weger, and their son, Karl Jr., live in Mt. Airy, Philadelphia.

The new director has worked in the fields of investments, real estate, business research, and public relations. For the past 15 years he has done organization and administrative work for charitable organizations and community type fund raising campaigns. He was associated with the United War Fund for four years.

When questioned about the Expansion program, Mr. Weger, who assumed his duties at Beaver in July, displayed unique brochures to be used in a concerted drive for funds in Abington Township, Cheltenham Township, and Jenkintown Borough during the month of January, as well as in a wide-spread appeal throughout Philadelphia and its four adjacent counties. Emphasis, Mr. Weger stated, will be made on the service rendered by Beaver College to the community, state, and nation.

Mr. Weger added that he is counting heavily on the student body for its support of the proposed activity of the Student-Parent organization.

IRC Sponsors UN Essay Contest

"I Speak For (or Against) the United Nations" will be the topic of the essay contest being sponsored by the International Relations Club this month.

An award of $5 will be presented to the winner of the contest, being held as part of Beaver's observance of United Nations Day, October 24. Members of the faculty will serve as judges.

On United Nations Day an international dinner will be held in the dining rooms of both campuses. The topic in chapel that night also will pertain to the United Nations.

If You Are 21 By November 6

Thirty-three percent of the eligible voters in the coming presidential election are under 35 years of age. Included in this group are the first voters, the 21-25 year old age group. Many Beaver students fall into this category. Because most resident students will not be at home election day, they need to obtain absentee ballots and in some cases register by mail.

The following table shows, according to states, how to register by mail, how to obtain an absentee ballot, and the deadline.

How to Register by Mail and Deadline

Conn.—No mail registration
Del.—No mail registration
Ga.—No mail registration
Ill.—No mail registration

Alumnae To Hold Sale

The Beaver Alumnae Club of Montgomery-Bucks County will sponsor a rummage sale on Thursday, October 11. The proceeds from this and other similar affairs this year will be put into the fund of the college, to supplement the Ford Foundation grant for increased salaries of the faculty.

On October 1 the first alumnae event of the season was sponsored by the Bucks County Alumnae Club. Grey Towers was the setting for the covered dish supper to which the new members of the faculty were invited as guests of honor.
