The decline had started. Stanley Dvorak of Norristown purchased Stotesbury Mansion for a reported $350,000. A low-budget rock horror film was made on the premises. The gardeners were let go and the formal gardens disappeared into weeds. Even after Kevy K. Kaiserman and George W. Neff purchased it in 1969 for $700,000, vandals and arsonists favored the location.

Stotesbury is in ruins. Kaiserman and Neff have fought several court battles to develop the property. 1977 saw a new set of plans to construct 118 housing units, which would involve razing the mansion, although the woodland surrounding it would be preserved. A 1978 zoning change points to the ultimate destruction of the historic mansion.

The neighbors of Stotesbury Mansion feel nostalgic to the gargantuan structure that overlooks their backyards. Many of them have lived nearby for years and have watched the place deteriorate. One neighbor, Karen Marshall sighed, "It used to be beautiful and now look at it — it's horrible." Contrary to rumor, no wild dogs live at Stotesbury, although pheasants, rabbits, and other wildlife have been spotted by area residents.

For the adventurous, Stotesbury Mansion may be reached by turning right on Cheltenham Avenue (by Korvettes) and proceeding about 1.4 miles to a left turn on Delphine Road. At the bottom of the hill, two white posts mark the entranceway. Beware — the police patrol the area regularly, and trespassers may be arrested and fined anywhere from $50 to $325.

It's worth it though. Anyone who can see past the crumbling walls and gutted interior will agree with Henry Ford who said after a visit, "It was a great experience to see how the rich live." It merits a playwright's success in the utterly ridiculous instance: an organism which falls in out of center approximately 12-foot oilot sets as a picture of Karl Marx and his philosophy. These not only leave the house bill, an estimator of the Value of the property says it is also a "tire for those who walk on stage and oilot tissue for Tzara the Shakespearean poet whose property was sold for a song 12 years ago. The mansion is a victim, we're not just a victim, it's also a trickster, any magical trickster, himself is a trickster and not just a trickster, it is also the symbol of the fall from grace of seemingly trickster and magical tricksters."

President Jimmy Carter replied that he had no intention of removing subsidies that enabled "so many hardworking families to earn a living." Approximately 600,000 farmers in the United States depend on tobacco for a major part of their livelihood. "If the government can spend $250 million to combat a nonexistent disease like the swine flu," said Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the Ralph Nader-affiliated Health Research Group, "then it should spend at least that much on smoking."

The Lacrosse team's winning streak ended at the hands of the Aces, 7-3, on Tuesday. The team was fighting for their final game. The result was ideal for the first time in the history of the program.

The scoring ended at the first half as the field's defense and a tiren attack on the defense tightened up. The team defended the goal for the first time.

The game ended at the second half as the offense fell against a tiren attack. The defense tightened up and checks and interceptions. The same time, Beaver's attack was running down the hill much easier and a five goal rally ensued. Sue Grosky and Debbie Castor each had two goals, while Pam Anderson's third goal of the day finished up Beaver's scoring.

The most exciting game of the season ended in disappointment as Swarthmore's skill in passing led to Beaver's undoing. The program was allotted to Patricia "Patsy" Potts, who appeared in the starring role. The program was well attended and enthusiasm generated.

Perhaps the most exciting event of the season ended in disappointment as Swarthmore's skill in passing led to Beaver's undoing. The Lynn Webster was accompanied by the Glee Club in a Christmas spiritual entitled "It Was Poor Little Jesus." Secondly, a portion of the program was allotted to Patricia Potts, the star of the show. The audience was captivated by the magic of the season and the talents of the performers.

Grey Towers Considered For National Monument

Historical building designation is that the building cannot be harmed by outside developers. For instance, if the state wanted to build a road that would ruin the aesthetic beauty of a national historical monument the National Register would prohibit it.

Grey Towers was erected for William Welsh Harrison, a member of Harrison, Havermeyer and Company, sugar refiners; in 1887 this family enterprise was incorporated as the Franklin Sugar Refining Co.

Snow Stifles Campus

West: "Guards Aren't Drunks"

Snow shovels travelled through the Research Annex rescuing the immobile professors from the sudden snowfall.

Food, not the lack of students, was the most important concern in the college. Nick LaSorsa, the hall manager, pointed out that the supply might have to be cut off. The last shipment of food arrived in time before the judges left, and the dormitories were stocked for the duration of the snow storms on campus.

Despite the lack of heat and the impossibility of getting out of bed, the snow did not stop the dormitory staff. The sudden inundation of postcards, packets, and postcards on campus everyone put in the mailroom.

Whether you call it Grey Towers, the old Harrison Estate, or the Castle, the stately mansion which dominates the southwestern horizon of Glenside, is Beaver College. Recently, the Washington Alumni Association suggested that procedures be undertaken to have the Castle declared a National Historical Monument.

Ms. Frances Lewis, vice president of development and college relations, and Dr. Edward Gates, president of the college, passed the suggestion on to Dr. Kenneth Matthews, chairman of the history department. Matthews has been busy researching the architecture and design of the Castle and preparing the

Party Addresses Problems

Campus Drinking, Smoking

By Beth Hailet

The student association president, Mary Alice Achec, recently suggested that student groups organize to address the drinking problem on campus.

Incident on campus related to the alcohol policy. Explains Mary Alice Achec, "It happened during orientation when mostly freshman were here. It was a calm party in back of the castle. I went outside, one keg was already gone, the other was half full. I told everyone they could go back in the castle.

Castle but stressed, "There are different guidelines. On special occasions you can serve alcoholic beverages in the Rose Room and the Mirror Room. We will be serving champagne punch at the 18th Century Ball. If it's bottled, beer can be served in the back Chat." There

In response to recent criticism in last week's Beaver News where students accused guards of being intoxicated on duty, Beaver's Maintenance Director John West vehemently denied such allegations. "None of my guards drink." West stated. Most of the drink complaints you hear now are just a carryover from last semester when there was a lot of drinking at the castle. West added, "the guards are here to protect the rights of the students living there too."

As for individual room parties, Parisi said, "As long as you respond to any disturbance you create, people should be able to relax and to have a good time in Residence Halls - but to consider that other people are living there, too." Parisi did not convey any real Glenside, PA (UPI) - The class of '81 made the first of what was to be thousands of treks to the Business Office ("No, sorry, you have to go to Student Affairs") in September 1977.

After the business was taken care of it was time for fun. Lenny's discos were exciting, especially under water. After the Chat dried up it was time for the foot-stomping, yee-haw Blue Grass parties. The Chat carpeting was wet again - this time from beer. The newly opened game room had a nice christening of its own right.

We did some school work that year - remember Mama Rat? How about the fetal pig? Or Freshman English and the plays at the Walnut Street Theater - "Uncle Vanya" and "Travesties." Who knew the balcony was that high? But we became "cultured."

It was fun living in the dorms, especially after Freshmen skits were over. Where else could you find something new to wear in the comfort of your own home? But we weren't the only ones living in the dorms: Dilworth seemed to have a population of tiny critters living on the residents. But the soap was so nice to use!
Sophomore year showed the dorms with some new inhabitants - those small, furry rodents, the Dilworth/Thomas rats. Maybe Mama Rat should have been done in your own room.

Besides trying to get rid of the rats, the Beaver Boys were also busy defending the dorm damsels against those nasty LaSalle men. Alas, the end of the panty raids. And who was the laundry room assailant anyway?

The events were always recorded for posterity through Mike Kirby’s “Bits and Pieces” - did your parents subscribe? If they did they were also comforted in the fact that we were so safe on campus. While the “Flasher” and the “Glenside Rapist” were prowling around, security was smashing jeeps into trees and buildings. Somebody tried to freeze them in time - remember the snow-filled jeep?

Some new things happened that year, too. The campus elected its first male president of SGO - at the same time that they reenacted the Animal House Toga Party; was there a connection.

After the girls Tennis Team won the league championship and the Soccer Team went undefeated - indeed, after anything, there was always a party on the Spring Garden hall on Kistler First South. Yes, Mr. Daniels was always present.
The wild "Garden Parties" were changed to a new location when Heinz went co-ed our Junior year. Even Westminster invaded the previously all women's dorm as "Heaven" moved to Second North. Not everyone was lucky enough to have a dorm room to live in: Mert settled for a tent on Dilworth's lawn. Meanwhile, inside Dilworth the guys were rating the girls that walked across campus; did they find the perfect "10"? Downstairs the Chat was getting a facelift, only after "Chuck the Chat" buttons became a part of everyone's wardrobe.

Blake Hall was changing, too. It became the Student Activities Center. Then Heinz became the home of other activities when the Universal room opened --- and the biceps began to bulge. Is that why we had two sports championships?
The changes were never-ending. Dean Landman could no longer let her hair fall for Mr. Beaver and Miss Jean Francksen retired after many years of successful teaching. While the castle masquerade parties were hopping all night long the newly-repaired Murphy clock chimed away the passing hours.

Our Junior year ended with a bang - and a flame. The last band party of the year ended when flames shot into the midnight sky. Dilworth was on fire. Many rooms, lounges and hallways were charred; Kistler was immediately transformed into a coed dorm.

Surprise, surprise - we’re finally seniors! But the beer is not flowing so smoothly. This was the year of dodging the new alcohol policy with “beer balls” and smuggled kegs. What an increase in the number of private T.G.I.F. cocktail parties - any day of the week.

Celebrations were held for many (and any) reasons. Beaver College celebrated the Phillies’ World Championship in a sea of beer. Easton Road motorists were reminded of the victory by a seemingly endless line of cheering Beavers who stood along the Easton Road wall.

Linda and Spock’s “wedding” and cafeteria reception were more good reasons for celebration. At the Halloween party in Murphy we saw many effects of the new coed hall: why were so many of Beaver’s men dressed in women’s clothes? Everyone recovered and even relaxed when Second West Heinz opened up a coed massage parlor. Yes, we knew how to relax!
Who could ever forget the personalities that brought us so much joy? What would breakfast have been like without Dr. Hazard whistling while sitting at the next table? Or Mark Steward playing football outside in the snow - without a shirt? Has anyone ever asked the real Director of Student Affairs to stand up - you know, the real Gale What's-her-name?

What would a day have been like without finding the Business Office closed, getting yelled at by Tom in the Chat, hearing Bird's announcements at lunch, seeing Benny with another girl, getting attacked by Randy, or not finding an article on reserve? What will happen to everyone? Will "Senator" Stein be our next President? Will Yale be his private doctor? Will Joe rebuild the White House? Will Lance tour the pro tennis circuit; will he always be a Freshman Orientation Leader?
Change. It will always redesign the world as we have seen it change the face of Beaver's campus. Since we arrived we've seen the enrollment of men almost double. Bird created NORML and Woodstock while Mert formed the Outing Club. The birth of Mr. Beaver spawned a new era of traditions on campus. Our Mr. Beaver's - Al, Bird, and Mark - will be recorded in history, as will be the winners of the Academy Awards. Beaver now has a new bus, a new flag, and a new face thanks to Linda's artwork.
We'll never forget New Wave and Punk music, President Carter, No Nukes, the Glenside Pub, Star, Bozo, Preppies, Mork & Mindy, Animal House, discos, Iran, the presidential election, the "me" generation, and 8:30 classes.
Despite change, some things will always stay the same. There will always be parking tickets, snowstorms, the Annual Beaver/Spring Garden Football game, Christmas decorations, the castle lawn - in the winter - in the spring, Dr. Hazard’s office, Camp Akiba, “flushing”, Dr. Johnston’s parties (Soc 269), gym credit, HoJo’s, Beaver Beach, senior thesis, formalin, art portfolios, and finals. And there will always be parties. Class of ’81: “This one’s for you!!”

Graduation Fears Quelled

First, during the time that elapses between schooling, an individual's interests may change. This time may serve as an opportunity to discover which specific field suits him. Another important reason is that very often once one is employed by a company, that company will pay for him to go back to school.

Not all undergraduates move into graduate school and not all psychology majors breed rats to run through mazes for the rest of their lives, so it is helpful to know that there are diverse occupations available in each major field. English majors may pursue careers as teachers, historians, editors or writers. Fine arts majors may enter fields from painting to business and management training. Psychology majors can help the mentally handicapped or teach. Some Beaver psychology majors have gone into law school.

... if one advances confidently in the direction of his dreams, and endeavors to live the life which he has imagined, he will meet with a success unexpected in common hours. He will put some things behind, will pass an invisible boundary; new, universal, and more liberal laws will begin to establish themselves around and within him; or the old laws be expanded, and interpreted in his favor in a more liberal sense, and he will live with the license of a higher order of beings. In proportion as he simplifies his life, the laws of the universe will appear less complex, and solitude will not be solitude, nor poverty, nor weakness weakness. "As I continue to achieve my goal in life, I will forever look up to God with sincere gratitude in helping me to follow the right path. For it is God which worketh in you to will and do of his good pleasure."
Today I want to do things to be doing them, not to be doing something else. I do not want to do things to sell myself on myself. I don’t want to do nice things for people so that I will be “nice.” I don’t want to work to make money, I want to work to work.

Today I don’t want to live for,
I want to live.
My prayer is;
I will be what I will be
And I will do what I will do. All I want to do, need to do, is stay in rhythm with myself. All I want is to do what I do and not to try to do what I don’t do. Just do what I do. Just keep pace with myself. Just be what I will be.

“I will be what I will be” - But I am now what I am. And here is where I will spend my energy. I need all my energy to be what I am today. Today I will work in rhythm with myself and not with what I “should be.” And to work in rhythm with myself I must keep tuned into myself. God revealed his name to Moses, and it was: I am what I am.

One dream becomes real — One thousand dreams become possible. I’ve only just begun; to live, learn, love. Un sueno llega a ser real — Mil suenos son posibles. Acabo de empezar; de vivir, aprender, amar. Un reve devient vrai — Mille reves deviennent possibles. Je ne fais que de commencer; de vivre, apprendre, aimer.

Textbook Store Finds New Home In Dilworth

By Judy York

The recent move of the textbook store has caused mass confusion among several Beaver students, including the seniors who are veteran textbook consumers. Mrs. Ann H.ie, the bookstore manager, explained during an interview with the Beaver News that when the store moved to Heinz Hall, the bookstore staff knew this location would be temporary because of plans to remodel the storeroom to become the new and permanent textbook store.

"The new location is much more convenient," Mrs. Canaan said. She added, "the new store can hold all of the books for all of the courses, and it can be managed much better since it is close to the regular bookstore." The bookstore staff expects new location to not only serve the staff, but also the students in a more competent way.

Dr. J Disturbed

To the Editor:

I was shocked to receive the last issue of the Beaver which contained a front page account in a news story for a fight on campus. I was not so shocked that there was no mention of my presence as an unlikely choice to write an objective news story.

Talent Abounds In Faculty Art Exhibit

By Jeff Neumasser

Stepping inside the Atwood Art Gallery, I immediately found myself surrounded by creatures, the likes never before witnessed. Then I remembered it was Halloween and my intrigue turned from the costumes to the art work on display at the annual Beaver Faculty Exhibition.

My first encounter with a faculty artist was Professor Mauro, who showed off his three-dimensional prints and objects. He found "creatures living in still life," which he calls "Night." A saucer might be seen dancing in still life as a hand holds objects. Paula Winokur paper mache into a vessel and covered ng shaving box. Dennis Kurek showed off his talents at graphic design.

Invasion of the Body Lice

By Mike Kirby

No, it isn't the title of one of those B grade science fiction flicks. It's a very real panic that has the students of Dilworth Hall literally climbing the walls. If you've recently had the un-controllable urge to scratch, itch or scream, you might be one of those poor unfortunates stricken with that irritating and somewhat embarrassing infestation known as pubic lice, more commonly referred to by degenerates and low-lifes as "crabs".

Crabs, those nasty little mutations that nest in your hair, under your arms and in your private parts, too. They're easily transmitted through physical contact and, if not treated, can lead to an emergency visit to the Health Center.

Fantasies Of Parking Lots

There has been a lot of speculation on behalf of Beaver Students in regard to the location and construction of Beaver's new parking lot. John West, director of the physical plant, has confirmed that there will be no parking lot(s) this year, since parking is not part of the school's original plan. As far as matters concerning the construction of parking lots must go through the township.

The new parking lot will include the hockey field. The township is concerned about the lack of water drainage, which will result from the removal of greens and shrubs.

Sports Report

Tennis Team Romps To Victory

It seems that when Coach Weiss' tennis team decides to win, they do just that. All Beaver players enjoyed the victory, led by Anita D'Amore, with her bullet backhand, shot down her opponent 6-2, 6-4. Despite the closeness of the second set, Polic and Meg Moyer, Beaver's second doubles team, showed their Montco opponents what tennis was all about.

Football Force

Last Sunday, Beaver College played a powerhouse. Unfortunately, it didn't work out for the team. The game was rough, but the team's spirit was high.

Hockey Record Drops To 3-3

Beaver took advantage of a fan's goal to tie the game at 3-3. It was a tough game, but the team hung in there.

Beaver College NORML held its second successful
Open House/Meeting on Thursday night, October 9.

Discussed were upcoming social activities such as the Makouch Band Party to be held on Saturday, October 18, 1980. This event is co-sponsored by SPB.

Educational topics discussed included the 1980 elections - the candidates and their stands on the issue of marijuana, and the use of marijuana in the field of medicine. Everyone warmed up on hot cocoa and marshmallows, and doughnuts were enjoyed by all.

Also, NORML will be showing three films on Thursday night, November 6 in Murphy Hall. The films include Buster Keaton (1922), Charlie Chaplin (1925) and W.C. Fields (1930). In addition, Beaver College NORML t-shirts are on sale.

PHILS DEFY THE ODDS

By Bruce Silverstein

Six months ago it was said that they didn't have a prayer; their pitching was considered to be weak and their offense wasn't supposed to be much better. Well, on Sunday night, in Houston, they brought the World Series to Philadelphia and the Phillies now have the opportunity to bring Philadelphia its first baseball championship since the Philadelphia Athletics left town.

The last time that the Phillies were in the World Series was 1950 when they lost to the New York Yankees, 4 games to none. The only other time they were in the Series was 1915 when Grover Cleveland Alexander won what was to be the only Phillies World Series victory in history. They went on.
