THE LOG

Nineteen Hundred and Seventy-six Stone towers hovering bodies textured with familiarity locked in a mosaic embrace surrounding you oblivious to the security that grew around your back bent to a nearsighted hunt for your self and those who've lured you away from guided you back to made you forget helped you to believe in this world are now realized in a wee hour's solitude over cold coffee you see that time has rinsed away your blindness to the prickly clarity of details the halls the bashes the paperbacks your pals wait to see if you can close your eyes to them all and walk away . . . .

"As I look back on my life one of the most constant and powerful things I have experienced within myself is the desire to be more than I am at the moment — a desire to do more, learn more, express more, a desire to grow, improve, accomplish, expand. I know that this energy within me is seeking more than the mate or the profession or the religion; more even than pleasure or power or meaning. It is seeking cut more of me."

When the white eagle of the North is flying overhead
The browns, reds and golds of autumn lie in gutter dead.
Remember then, that summer birds with wings of fire flaying Come to witness springs new hope, born of leaves decaying.
Just as new life will come from death, love will come at leisure.
Love of love, love of life and giving without measure Gives in return a wondrous yearn of promise almost seen.
Live hand-in-hand and together we'll stand on the threshold of a dream.

Time it was,

And what a time it was,

It was . . .

A time of innocence,

A time of confidences.

Long Ago . . . it must be . . .

I have a photograph.

Preserve your memories;

They’re all that’s left you.
